P
Univ
H.S

Charles T. Singer
June 30. 1886.

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2008 with funding from Microsoft Corporation

http://www.archive.org/details/n02reportclass1883harvuoft

JOHN HARVARD FOUNDER

WITH THE COMPLIMENTS OF THE SECRETARY.

348808
5. 4. 38.

Harvard University
Class of 83

348808
5. 4. 38.

CLASS COMMITTEE.

JEFFREY RICHARDSON BRACKETT.
MARSHALL HENRY CUSHING.
EDWARD CUMMINGS.

Class Secretary.

FREDERICK NICHOLS.

INTRODUCTION.

To the Class of Eighty-three:

In this, the second Report which I have the honor as your Secretary to submit, it was my original intention that each man should be reported, as far as possible, in his own words, since thus the record as a whole would gain in vividness, accuracy, and interest. This purpose has in the main been adhered to, although I have been obliged frequently to condense, to omit the irrelevant, or over-confidential, and to eliminate much flippant comment and unworthy derision with regard to the matrimonial estate; and I have also, in many cases, added facts likely to prove of interest, which were either omitted by the writer, or unknown to him at the time.

The task of proper selection from the material furnished, has proved extremely perplexing, and I cannot hope that my censorship will meet entire approval as always judicious or satisfactory; but at least it may claim, I trust, absolution on the score of good intentions. The labor of transcription which I had hoped partially to escape, as a matter involving health, I found it on the whole necessary to undertake, and the entire "copy" has been prepared by my own hand. The Report as it stands, therefore, is the work of the Secretary alone, and for its deficiencies he alone should be held responsible.

Although I had prepared myself, in a measure, for the stony indifference with which mankind is wont to regard the printed circular, I must confess to a considerable degree of surprise at the reluctance you have shown to part with the information requested. In response to the first series of questions mailed on February 1st, after an interval of two months only sixty-seven replies had been received. The second series, issued on April 1st, although accompanied by an autograph request, were evidently regarded by many as the conventional joke authorized by the day and were treated accordingly. The third and fourth series followed more closely, each enforced by a personal appeal. These were succeeded by autograph letters, — some fifty being required, — and then either the delinquents were "labored with" personally, or the desired facts were obtained from other sources, until at length the end was reached, viz: a collection of records relating to every member of the Class. In the pages which follow, therefore, "Has not been heard from," or, "Has not replied," etc., mean as a rule, that no answer has been received to four circulars, accompanied by three written requests, besides one, and in some cases two, autograph letters; and that the accuracy of the information given is not vouched for by the Secretary.

With regard to other and novel features of the Report, the Triennial Review (page 93), I have introduced feeling sure that the record of change and progress in the University, hasty and imperfect as it is, cannot fail to be of interest to the Class which for four years filled so large a place in the life of Harvard, and especially to those whose distance from old Cambridge has rendered frequent communication impossible, and occasional news, therefore, all the more welcome. The illustrations of buildings, etc., which find a place for the same reasons, are a novelty in Triennial Reports, and one on which I should not have ventured, on the ground of expense, had I not been able to make exceptionally favorable arrangements with the Heliotype Company. In the Appendix, also, appears matter which it has not been hitherto the practice to publish. The cover of the Report is printed in our Class color, and has been subjected to a design by the Secretary.

I propose, with your approval, that the next Report shall be issued in four years from the present time, instead of three; and after that, at intervals of five years, as is the custom. This arrangement will not only afford an additional year's recuperation to a debilitated Class Fund, but will bring our future Class Reports into concurrence with the Quinquennial Catalogues published by the University.

In conclusion, let me say that, upon beginning my work of preparation, it was my aim to present you with the ideal Triennial Report. This modest aspiration has been chilled and thwarted by almost continuous illness, but its partial accomplishment I venture to intrust to the members of Eighty-three, in the hope that it will be less unsatisfactory to them than to myself.

With my best wishes for the steady fulfilment, in the years to come, of the undoubted promise contained in the pages which succeed,

I remain,

Your friend and classmate,

FREDERICK NICHOLS.

CLASS OF 1883.

The names of those who have died are printed in italics.

George Henry Howland Allen
Gwynne Murdoch Andrews
Hugh Alexander Andrews
William Henry Aspinwall
Luther Atwood
Angell Boss Babbitt
Thomas Cogswell Bachelder
James Eliot Baker
Lucas Lee Baker
David Nevins Baxter
George William Beals
Charles Mortimer Belshaw
Horace Binney
Jeffrey Richardson Brackett
Charles Poor Briggs
William Wendell Bryant
James Merrill Burch
Albert Cameron Burrage
George Dixwell Burrage
Walter Lincoln Burrage
Edward Knowles Butler
Robert Gordon Butler
Edward Twisleton Cabot
Henry Bromfield Cabot
Charles Dexter Canterbury
John Chandler
Henry Grafton Chapman
Henry Ernest Chase
Francis Lewis Clark
Joseph Sill Clark
Stephen Cutter Clark
Mortimer Hall Clarke
Russell Sturgis Codman
Robert Coit
Charles D'Urban Morris Cole
Joseph Randolph Coolidge
Louis Arthur Coolidge
Sumner Coolidge
Thomas Washington Cowgill
Henry Howland Crapo
Edward Cummings
Charles Pelham Curtis
Walter Curtis
Marshall Henry Cushing
Walter Reeves Dame
Walter Elijah Damon
William Lawrence Dana
Gibson Mallory Davis
Joseph Edwin Davis
Stanton Day
Arthur Clark Denniston
George Badger Dewson
Joseph Dorr
Edmond Scott Dow
George Garrett Dunn
Morris Earle
James Hamlet Bolt Easton
Percival James Eaton

John Hubbard Wilkins Edgerly
Harry Ransom Edwards
William Crowninshield Endicott
Robert Berry Ennis
George William Evans
William Faxon
Francis Britain Fay
Lynde Raymond Ferris
John William Fox
Richard Pearce Francis
Waldo Fuller
James Newton Garratt 1885
William Halsey Garrison
Charles Walter Gerould
Clarence Getchell
Benjamin Franklin Goodnough
Charles Hall Grandgent
Percy Stickney Grant
Edward Everett Hale
Henry Martyn Hall
James Milton Hall
Charles Sumner Hamlin
Charles Mifflin Hammond
Gardiner Greene Hammond
Mellen Woodman Haskell
Hammond Vinton Hayes
Walter Edward Hayward
George Henry Heilbron
Ernest Flagg Henderson
George Ross Hewitt
George Heywood
Archie Livingstone Hodges
Benjamin Blake Holmes
Charles Witherle Hooke
Franklin Henry Hooper
George Ebenezer Howe
Edwin Cull Howell
Charles Joseph Hubbard
Ernest Sanford Jack
Henry Barton Jacobs
William Charles Jennings
Frank Elwood Jennison
Louis Osborn Johnson
Paul Jones
Frank Warton Kaan
Patrick Michael Keating
George Paul Keith
Warren Franklin Kellogg
Edward Kent
Chokichi Kikkawa
Stephen Herrick Knight
Alfred Church Lane
Joseph Lee
Howard Lilienthal
Herbert Marshall Lloyd
Morris Loeb
William Alden Lombard
Augustus Mendon Lord
William Tyler Lord
George Emerson Lowell 1881
Arthur Lyman
José Antonio Machado
Edwin Guthrie McInnes
Richard Crane McKay
David Ives Mackie
Arthur Richmond Marsh
Sollace Mitchell
Reuben Burnham Moffat
John Farwell Moors
George Burnap Morison
George Patrick Morris
Charles Francis Morse
Franklin Woodruff Moulton
Gisaburo Nakawara
Charles Corbett Nichols
Charles Prosser Nichols
Frederick Nichols
George Henry Nichols
William Edgar Nies
Samuel Norris
James Atkins Noyes
Robert Emmet O'Callaghan
George Hyde Page
William Hussey Page
Trenor Luther Park
John Letcher Patterson
Walter Everard Paul
Louis Robert Eugène Paulin
Sumner Bass Pearmain
John Downer Pennock
Charles Page Perin
Charles Bruen Perkins
Oscar Edward Perry
Alonzo Wilder Pollard

George Jonathan Porter
James Faulkner Preston
Herbert Putnam
Osgood Putnam
Charles Ranlet
Fletcher Ranney
Frederic Gray Reed
Daniel Merchant Richardson
Philip Richmond
Charles Enoch Robinson
Charles Randall Rockwell
Edmund Swett Rousmaniere
William Alvah Rublee
Fletcher Ferris Ryer
Sabin Pond Sanger
Everett Wyman Sawyer
Fred Leland Sawyer
Henry Francis Sears
Richard Dudley Sears
Archibald Lowery Sessions
Rayiner Sharp
Joseph Henry Sheffield
John Dickinson Sherwood
Charles Worcester Smith
James Beebe Smith
Ormond Gerald Smith
Walter Edward Clifton Smith
Henry Lloyd Smyth
Walter Soren
Frank Miller Sparrow
Horace Elmer Sprague
Nathan Cushman Stevens
Arthur Kingsbury Stone
William Dunning Sullivan
Edward Williams Stephens Tingle
Alfred Tonks
Edward Perry Warren
William Ross Warren
William Wadsworth Wentworth
Alfred Jerome Weston
Daniel Appleton White
John Henry Wigmore
Richard Baker Wilcox
William Hall Williams
Ralph Denton Wilson
Charles Edgar Lewis Wingate
George Scott Winslow
Winthrop Church Winslow
Robert Dudley Winthrop
Joseph Meyer Witmer
Arthur Henry Woodbury
Charles Pomeroy Worcester
Alphonso Adelbert Wyman

—205

William Henry Allen
Howard Eyre Altemus
Byron Ellis Baker 1881
Frederick George Bemis
Charles Wesley Birtwell
Charles Renwick Breck
Frank Taylor Brown 1885
Julius Buchman
Frank Waldo Burdett
William Chalfant
Walter Freeman Chapin
George Edward Cole
Palmer Coolidge
Henry Crawford
William Herbert Crawford
Charles Edwin Davis
Edwin Sloan Davis
William Andrews Dole
Charles Hamlin Dunton
Fabius Edwin Elder
Daniel Butler Fearing
Edwin Thayer Fearing
Edward Ashley Ferguson
Howard Frost
Richard Buckminster Fuller
Walter Rogers Furness

Frank Hamilton Harvey 1880
Everett Wesley Hatch 1882
Francis Loring Hayford 1881
Thomas Berry Higgins
Henry Reese Hoyt
Harry Walter Jones
Woodbury Kane
Charles Hayden Kip
Stephen Strickland Kirby
Courtney Langdon
Prescott Lawrence
George Henry Leatherbee
Cyrus Edwin Lothrop
William Pratt Lyman
Arthur Fred McArthur
James Francis Mahan
Frederick William Morton
Charles Frederick Nirdlinger
Hugh Kinsley Norman
William Tappan Peirce
George William Perkins
Henry Wilson Perkins
John William Potter
Frederick Henry Prince
Charles Edwin Rand
Wallace Rice
William Armstrong Rogers
Charles Robertson Saunders
Edward David Scott
Joseph Russel Sharp
Francis Ricketson Slocum
Edgar Dwight Smith 1880
Charles Inches Sturgis
William Monroe Tisdale
George Haines Treadwell
Gustavus Tuckerman
Andrew Gray Weeks
Benjamin Wickham Wellington
John Arthur Wellington 1883
Horatio Hackett Welton
Henry Elver Weston
William Hutchinson Weston
William Luke Wycherly White

$-69+265=274$

RECORD OF THE CLASS.

July, 1883—July, 1886.

The information contained in the following pages was received in reply to these questions from the Secretary:

1. Residence and occupation since leaving college. When and where admitted as a member of your profession or business. If in business, with what firms.

2. If married, give time and place. Residence and maiden name of wife, and her parents' names in full. Names, in full, of children, if any, with dates of birth. Death of wife or children, with dates.

3. Journeys in this or foreign countries, or voyages taken, with your impressions thereof, giving dates in all cases.

4. College or other degrees received. Membership of clubs or societies, whether social, political, literary or scientific. Offices of profit, honor or trust which you have held, with times of appointment and continuance.

5. Authorship of books, pamphlets, magazine articles, etc., with exact titles and dates of publication. Addresses made before public meetings.

6. Any other circumstances or experiences, not covered by the above, which would prove of interest to the class.

7. Your permanent address for the next four years,—i. e., the address to which communications may be sent with the certainty of being forwarded in case of unexpected change of residence for business or other reasons.

GEORGE HENRY HOWLAND ALLEN.

"In July, 1883, I entered the office of the Morse Twist, Drill, & Machine Company, of New Bedford, and am still with that Company. Have not been engaged and am not married. Have not made any journeys of importance, neither have I engaged in any literary work. Am a member of the Wamsutta and Dartmouth Clubs, both social organizations of this city, the New Bedford Yacht Club, and the New Bedford Protecting Society, a volunteer organization connected with the Fire Department."

GWYNNE MURDOCH ANDREWS.

Has not been heard from. After graduation he entered a law office in New York City, and continued his studies there until October, 1885. He then went West for the Winter, but it is his intention, the Secretary understands, to return to New York next year, and resume the study of the law.

HUGH ALEXANDER ANDREWS.

In March, 1884, he went to Wyoming to look the country over and to see if he should care to engage in the cattle business. He quickly made up his mind in favor of this course, and in May of the same year he purchased an interest in the firm of Strobridge, Andrews & Co., with which he is still connected. During the first year he "rode the range," and kept the books of the firm; and his experiences since have been the usual ones of a stock-grower in the West. His travels have been confined to journeys between his headquarters at Dixon, Wyoming, and his home in Cincinnati, Ohio; and his "impressions" are that "railroad travel is excessively disagreeable."

WILLIAM HENRY ASPINWALL.

In August, after graduation, he entered the office of Alexander S. Porter, Real Estate Broker, of Boston, and remained with him until January, 1885. He then formed a partnership with R. S. Codman, '83, in the real estate business, under the firm name of Aspinwall & Codman, their office being at 7 Exchange Place, Boston.

LUTHER ATWOOD.

Returned to Cambridge in the Spring of 1884, and occupied himself in tutoring undergraduates. The following October he entered the Harvard Law School, where he remained throughout the year. During the Winter of 1885–6, he continued at the Law School, and until April was established as proctor in 29 Thayer. At the time of writing, has gone South, with a pupil under his charge. He intends, so the Secretary is informed, to engage in business in the East. Has not replied to circulars.

ANGELL BOSS BABBITT.

"Immediately after graduation I received and accepted an offer of a position as teacher of Latin and Greek in Swithin C. Shortlidge's Academy, Media, Pa., which position I have held ever since. On September 2, 1884, I was married, in Worcester, Mass., to Miss Ida L. Adams, who at that time resided there. On July 9, 1885, our son, Louis A. Babbitt, was born."

THOMAS COGSWELL BACHELDER.

"My three years have been spent steadily at the Harvard Law School, and I have not distinguished myself in any way, unless, possibly, the taking of some eight more prizes in the Winter Meetings of the H. A. A. be an honor.

"I was admitted to the Suffolk Bar in December, 1885; and I fondly imagine that I shall take an A. M. and an LL. B. at the next Commencement."

JAMES ELIOT BAKER.

After graduation, entered the employ of A. M. Howland & Co., Wool Merchants, of Boston, where he remained until the Winter of 1884. Then, after a brief interval of leisure, he obtained a position in the wool firm of Dewey, Gould & Dyke, 169 Congress Street, Boston, with which he is still connected, making periodical business trips to the West. Has not replied to circulars.

LUCAS LEE BAKER.

"Soon after graduation I was appointed Sub-master of the Spencer (Mass.) High School. At present I am Principal of the Holliston (Mass.) High School, this being my second year in that capacity."

DAVID NEVINS BAXTER.

Has been in the employ, during the past year, of Wright & Baxter, Flour Merchants, Chatham Street, Boston, but at the time of writing is at his home in Rutland, Vt. Has not replied to circulars.

GEORGE WILLIAM BEALS.

"In the Autumn of 1883, I entered the employ of the Craighead & Kintz Manufacturing Co., a company newly organized for the manufacture of German and French metal goods in this country. I passed one year at their factory at Ballardvale, Mass., and in October, 1884, was assigned a position in their Boston office, 52 Pearl St., where I have since remained, holding at present the post of New England Agent for the company. In May, 1884, I joined the Puritan Club of Boston."

CHARLES MORTIMER BELSHAW.

Has been, since graduation, employed in the mining industry at Antioch, in the mountain districts of California, for which profession he prepared himself while at Harvard. Vague rumors of his having trained a crew for races in local waters have reached the Secretary, though the latter has been favored with no response to numerous circulars.

HORACE BINNEY.

After nearly completing the first year at the Harvard Law School, he was compelled to discontinue his studies on account of trouble with his eyes, and went to Hot Springs, Ark., for rest. In the following Autumn, he resumed his work at the Law School, but again was forced by ill health to withdraw, and has since been unable to continue his chosen work. In February, 1886, he sailed for Europe, intending to remain until June, and at the time of writing is at Carlsbad, Germany.

JEFFREY RICHARDSON BRACKETT.

"The Winters since graduation I have spent in Baltimore, the first two as a post-graduate student of the Johns Hopkins University, in the seminary of Historical and Political Science. During the Summer of 1884 I visited Germany, Switzerland, and England. In September, 1885, I read a paper on 'The Free Negro in Maryland,' before the American Historical Association, of which I had been elected a member."

CHARLES POOR BRIGGS.

Passed the Autumn following graduation in the mountains of North Carolina, and on his return decided to enter the Harvard Medical School; owing, however, to the rule requiring registration within a week from the beginning of a school year in order to insure membership, he was obliged to wait until the Autumn of 1884 before entering. He has now completed his second year in the Medical School.

WILLIAM WENDELL BRYANT.

"In September, after leaving college, I entered the employ of Messrs. Howe & Goodwin, Calcutta Commission Merchants, in their Boston office, 52 Kilby Street. At the same time I accepted the position of Secretary at Adams Academy, Quincy, Mass.,—doing the work evenings—and lived at the Academy Boarding House. In July, 1885, the firm of Howe & Goodwin was changed to Howe, Balch & Tay, and I came into the New York office, 77 Water Street, where I am at present. I have joined no clubs except the Massachusetts Reform Club, of which I was elected a member soon after the presidential elections of 1884. Next September I expect to leave for Calcutta, to be gone four years in the employ of the firm with which I am now connected."

JAMES MERRILL BURCH.

"August 1, 1884, I entered the employ of the Necedah Lumber Co., at Necedah, Wis., where I have remained ever since, having obtained an interest in the business on January 1, 1886. Our firm is engaged in the manufacture and wholesaling of lumber.

"Was married November 11, 1884, at 436 Columbus Avenue, Boston, Mass., to Miss Mary Louise Darling, daughter of Mary F. and the late Charles K. Darling, of Boston, the Rev. Dr. A. A. Miner, officiating.

"We have one daughter, Eleanor, born March 22, 1886.

"Am a member of the Chicago Harvard Club."

ALBERT CAMERON BURRAGE.

"The Summer of 1883 I studied law with my brother in Gardner, Mass. Then studied law in the Harvard Law School till June, 1884. Then again in Gardner, till September 19, 1884, when I was admitted to the bar at Worcester, Mass. October 1, 1884, I began the practice of the law in Boston, with Thomas P Proctor, Esq., with whom I have been ever since. December 22, 1885, was admitted to the United States District Court. November 10, 1885, I was married, by Rev. Percy Browne, at St. James (Episcopal) Church, St. James Street, Roxbury, Mass., to Alice Hathaway Haskell, daughter of Francis Hathaway Haskell and Elizabeth (Russell) Haskell, of Roxbury, Mass. The only pamphlet, etc., I have written is a small insurance report."

April 4, 1885, he was elected a member of the Bar Association of Boston, and December 23, 1885, joined the Mass. Civil Service Reform Association.

GEORGE DIXWELL BURRAGE.

"In the Autumn of 1883 I entered the Harvard Law School where I remained two years. Since September 1, 1885, I have been a student in the office of Messrs. Gaston & Whitney, 28 School Street, Boston. Since leaving Cambridge in June, 1885, I have lived at home in Chestnut Hill, Mass. I passed the Summer vacation of 1884 abroad, travelling for the greater part of the time in England, Norway and Germany."

WALTER LINCOLN BURRAGE.

1. "I am studying medicine at the Harvard Medical School, where I have been since leaving college.

2. "I am unmarried.

3. "I have made no journeys except two short trips to Mt. Desert, in the Summers of 1883 and 1884 respectively.

4. "I am a life member of the Young Men's Christian Union, a member of the Boylston Medical Society, and a member of the committee to revise its constitution. I have held three appointments in the Out-Patient Department of the Massachusetts General Hospital, for two months each, and I am assistant to Dr. John Homans.

5. "I read a paper on the Signs and Symptoms of Pregnancy, before the Boylston Medical Society, last November."

EDWARD KNOWLES BUTLER.

Has been engaged in orange culture since the Fall of 1883, at Martin, Marion Co., Florida; and is a member of the firm, Bradley & Butler, of that place.

ROBERT GORDON BUTLER.

"I left Cambridge the Monday before Commencement, 1883, leaving the Class Dinner at Young's to take the train for New York City. On Commencement Day I entered the law office of Davenport & Leeds, 18 Wall Street, as a student, and in October, 1883, entered the Columbia Law School. In November I obtained from Governor Cleveland a public notaryship, and made my first money in the law by means of it.

"For a month, in the Summer of 1884, I acted as extra clerk in my father's office, and then went back to the law, working chiefly with my brother, and with Cary & Whitridge, at 59 Wall Street. On May 15, 1885, I passed, at Poughkeepsie, the examination for admittance to the Bar of this State, and the next day, along with Moffat, '83, and fifty-one other men, was sworn in as attorney and counsellor. Several days later I passed the Columbia Law School examinations, just getting through. The Law School Commencement Day was May 27; on that morning I went on the New York Sun as reporter, and while my classmates were listening to disquisitions on law and the duties of lawyers, and receiving their diplomas, I was at the 'entertainment' of the N. Y. Retail Grocers' Protective Union. It was stupider, even, than the Commencement.

"Most of my travelling recently has been in my capacity as reporter. I was for nearly a month last Summer at Peekskill, where the State has its Camp of Instruction, sending down 'stories' about the Ninth, Thirteenth, Forty-seventh, and Twenty-second Regiments. More recently I have 'accompanied the remains' of General McClellan to Trenton, and of General Hancock to Norristown.

"Degrees, offices of honor, trust, etc.:—May 27, 1885, Degree of LL. B. from Columbia Law School. November, 1883, Notary Public for Westchester County, N. Y.; commission renewed in 1884. April, 1884, Secretary of the Republican Primary Meeting of Scarsdale, N. Y. April 12, 1884, Delegate from Scarsdale, to the Republican Convention of Westchester Co. Special Deputy Sheriff to 'assist' at the execution of Hoffman, a murderer, in May, 1884. I declined the honor. February, 1886, elected a member of the New York Press Club; haven't yet qualified.

"Have written several stories, only one of which has been accepted. It is 'John Turnor's Invention,' accepted and paid for by Lippincott, but not yet published."

Our classmate was a pronounced 'Mugwump' in the campaign of 1884; and through his exertions, and those of his family, the town of Scarsdale went Democratic by two votes, for the first time since the War.

EDWARD TWISLETON CABOT.

"Since leaving college I have attended the Harvard Law School, but shall probably not graduate as I was unable to take the examinations at the end of last year. I spent the Summer of 1885 in Europe, mostly in England and Switzerland."

He has been a member of the Ames-Gray Club in the Law School, and belongs to the Puritan Club of Boston.

HENRY BROMFIELD CABOT.

"Immediately after Commencement I turned wanderer and spent a year abroad, passing a winter in Italy and studying through one term in Heidelberg. In the fall of 1884 I entered the Harvard Law School, and have remained there through two Winters, spending the intervening Summer in England.

Degrees (since we all stalked out of Sanders, prize in hand), offices, literary productions, etc., will practically fit within one circle—0."

CHARLES DEXTER CANTERBURY.

"Since leaving college I have lived at East Weymouth, Mass., where I am associated with my father in the boot and shoe business. Am not married, have written no books, held no offices of trust, honor or profit, and the only travelling I have done has been in Ohio and Michigan, on business trips."

JOHN CHANDLER.

"After leaving college, I took up my residence in Boston, where I have remained ever since. In September, 1883, I entered the employ of Warren & Co., of Boston, steamship agents, and have been with them up to the present time."

HENRY GRAFTON CHAPMAN.

After graduation, took the second year course at the Harvard Law School, having already taken the studies of the first year while in college. He then went to New York City, where he has since continued in the study of the law, and expected to take the examination for the Bar in May, 1886. Has not replied to circulars.

HENRY ERNEST CHASE.

"After graduation, the Summer was spent on Cape Cod, in recreation much as usual, except that a portion of the time was devoted to exploration of some old shell heaps along the coast and in the preparation of a pamphlet for the Smithsonian Institute, describing the results of my search. On the eighteenth of October, 1883, I left home to make an extended journey for pleasure and observation through the West and Southwest, to learn what I could of the mining, smelting and cattle-raising industries there, and to see if I should choose to engage in any of them. This journey took me through Colorado, Utah, New Mexico, Arizona, California, and Old Mexico, and gave me great opportunities to visit leading mining and smelting centres, and to visit friends on ranches in New Mexico and Colorado.

"The smelting works, especially those at Pueblo and Argo, in Colorado, took considerable of my attention, and in some mining camps where much work had been done, I spent several days underground. I enjoyed visits to some of the wildest and least-visited portions of the Rocky Mountains, in Colorado, with two very successful hunting trips made in the neighborhood of the Black Cañon of the Gunnison, and up the Florida river near Durango. I have been through the Santa Rita range and other mountains of New Mexico above Silver City, and explored the wonderful desert country in Arizona intersected by the Grand Cañon of the Colorado, have ascended Pike's Peak twice, and gone swimming in Great Salt Lake in the month of November.

"New Years' Day, 1884, found me in the city of Chihuahua, Mexico, visiting the cathedrals and other places of interest, and learning what I could of the strange inhabitants. At every opportunity I have studied new tribes of Indians as I met them, learned all I could of their history and manners, and visited ancient ruins and works of extinct tribes.

"Returning from this journey in February, 1884, thoroughly impressed with the uncertainty of mining for precious metals, under any circumstances, I decided upon entering the cattle-raising business. Since May, 1884, I have been actively engaged in this, with only two visits home. For a while I worked for a large cattle company in Nebraska, between the Platte and South Loup rivers, and then went in for myself in Arizona, where I have been living the past year. My ranch is about eighty miles south of Winslow, a station on the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad, and at an elevation of above 5,000 feet, so that the climate is cool and very pleasant, though the hot lower country of Tonto Basin is but a few miles to the south of me, where giant cacti and other southern flora abound.

"I am not married. Have not received any degrees since graduation, nor written anything for publication except a few true stories of travel and adventure, one of these to appear in the 'Youth's Companion.'

"Any of my friends who would like to take a little broncho riding for exercise and excitement, or hunt large game, including Apaches, perhaps, should come and see me, and I will do my best to make their visit a pleasant one."

FRANCIS LEWIS CLARK.

"Immediately after graduation I went abroad, intending to make the regular tourist round, but I was taken ill in Switzerland, and returned, August 1, to my home in Bangor, Me. I had an appointment as an assistant in Palaeontology at the Smithsonian Institute, but decided to give it up on account of my illness. The next six months I spent in Maine, camping out as late as the season permitted.

"In March, 1884, I decided to go West for a while, and came to Washington Territory on account of the remarkably fine climate. I started from Pataka across the country, to see the great falls of the Spokane river, and found in the town at the falls, J. D. Sherwood, '83, and Chamberlin, '80. I lived here for a year, fishing, hunting, and speculating in land, and recovered my health to a great extent. Early in 1885, I decided to build a flour mill here, and having obtained, in January, a fine mill site, was able to start the mill in October. The mills are known as the 'C. & C. Mills' from the firm name Clark & Curtis—my partner being F. E. Curtis, of Minneapolis. Business prospects pretty good.

"We live here very pleasantly; it is rather far away, but the town is growing fast, and, as Westerners, we are happy."

JOSEPH SILL CLARK.

"On June 27, 1883, I sailed from New York for Liverpool, on the steamer Gallia. After a few weeks in England, I spent the month of August tramping through Switzerland, in company with G. B. Morison and A. Lyman, '83, and a few others; and September 8th I sailed from Antwerp for New York on the steamer Rhineland.

"I entered the Law Department of the University of Pennsylvania, October 1, 1883, working at the law office of Mr. John C. Bullitt in the mornings, and attending lectures in the afternoons. I had graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1881, before going to Harvard; and, in the spring of 1884, I wrote, for the degree of Master of Arts, a thesis on 'Moral Obligation as the Consideration for a Contract,' and was given that degree at their Commencement in June of that same year, being, as required, a graduate of three years' standing. I continued my law course during the winter of 1884–5, and was graduated with the degree of LL.B, in June, 1885. I had written a graduation essay upon 'Car Trust Bonds,' which received the second prize. I was admitted to the Philadelphia Bar in June, 1885, and since then have been practising law in that city."

STEPHEN CUTTER CLARK.

Has not been heard from. In July, 1881, went to Germany, and for a half semester attended lectures at the Leipzig University. After a trip to Italy and France, returned to America in June, 1882, and joined the class of 1883 in the following October. After completing the College course with our class, in September, 1883, organized and took charge of the J. Tyler Barker Free School, in West Boxford, Mass.

MORTIMER HALL CLARKE.

For two years after graduation, he studied at the Harvard Law School; then changed his intention, and is now a student at the Boston University School of Medicine. He has taken no journeys, and is a member of "a few minor social clubs."

RUSSELL STURGIS CODMAN.

"In October, 1883, I entered the banking house of Kidder, Peabody & Co., where I remained one year. January 1, 1885, I became associated with my classmate, W. H. Aspinwall, in the business of real estate, including brokerage, and the general management of estates, in which we have met with some success. Our office is at No. 7 Exchange Place, Boston, where we expect to remain.

"In November, 1883, I enlisted in the Boston Cadets for a term of three years. I was partly instrumental in organizing the 'Young Men's Independent Club,' which did some good work in Boston, during the last Presidential campaign, in the interest of Cleveland. I have also been a member of the Puritan Club since its organization in the summer of 1884."

ROBERT COIT.

"I left college in the latter part of March, 1883, as I had accepted an invitation to go out to Persia as Secretary to the newly-appointed U. S. Minister, Hon. S. G. W. Benjamin. I sailed early in April, and enjoyed exceedingly the two months' journey — up the Mediterranean to Constantinople, then up the Black Sea, across to and down the Caspian to Resht, and thence some fifty 'parasangs' on horseback, across the mountains to Teheran.

"The year spent in Persia was very interesting and agreeable. In the Summer all the European residents and the wealthier Persians resort to the gardens on the mountain slopes, just north of Teheran. At the time of our Class Day, I had begun to feel quite at home among the pomegranates and roses, the tall plane trees and fragrant jasmins, the shady alleys, and pools and rivulets of water, which make up the Persian 'paradises.' As soon as the weather grew cooler, we returned to the city, and established the American legation in a large Persian house, which is a rambling succession of rooms built around an open interior court or garden. The Shah gave occasional audiences to the different legations, and there were frequent diplomatic negotiations and official dinners. The Europeans, and especially the English residents, made a very pleasant colony; and the Persian gentlemen were very courteous and intelligent, though not absolutely to be relied upon.

"When the year was finished, I declined to renew the engagement, and left Teheran in June, 1884. I spent the Summer travelling in Europe and England, and returned to America in October. Since my return I have been studying architecture, spending one year in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and am now in the office of Hartwell & Richardson, 68 Devonshire Street, Boston.

"The only literary work I can record is a number of letters written to the New York Evening Post and the Youths' Companion, and a descriptive lecture on Persia, which I have read several times."

CHARLES D'URBAN MORRIS COLE.

In October, 1883, he entered the Columbia College Law School, remaining there two years, and graduating in May, 1885, with the degree of LL.B. On May 28, 1884, he was taken into the law offices of John H. Cole, Esq., as a clerk, at the same time keeping up his work at the Law School by taking the late afternoon lectures. During the month of May, 1885, in New York city, he was admitted to practice as an attorney and counsellor-at-law in all the courts of the State. In July, 1885, he entered the offices of Messrs. Dillaway, Davenport, and Leeds as managing attorney, remaining with them until Christmas, when he received an offer to enter the law offices of Messrs. Johnson, Gallup and Hurry, as an assistant to the firm, which offer he accepted, and is with them now.

While in the Columbia College Law School, he was initiated into the Zeta Psi fraternity by the Alpha Chapter, and was also a member of a law club. He wrote an article entitled "Harvard University," in the January number of the Zeta Psi Quarterly, which was republished in the spring number of the Sigma Kappa Quarterly. He is a member of the Zeta Psi Club, and the Conspirator's Club.

JOSEPH RANDOLPH COOLIDGE.

"I taught Spanish at Harvard, and studied for an A. M. till June, 1884. Then I spent over a year abroad, chiefly in Germany and Italy. I will say nothing more of my European travels than that they included a visit to Bayreuth during the 'Parsifal' season, and two riding journeys: one from Paris almost to Dresden on a bicycle, alone; the second from Dresden, with another '83 man, on a 'tandem' tricycle, through Germany, some 550 miles, to Aix-la-Chapelle.

"Since my return home, in the fall of 1885, I have been a clerk with Lee, Higginson & Co., Stock Brokers, 44 State Street, Boston, and find business much to my taste. I am engaged to be married."

LOUIS ARTHUR COOLIDGE.

"After a few weeks straggling work on the local paper at home (Natick, Mass.), I came to the Springfield Republican as a reporter, in October, 1883, and have been here ever since. Was made New England editor in November, 1884, and shortly after that took the telegraph desk at which I am writing this."

SUMNER COOLIDGE.

"In September, 1883, I began teaching in the Watertown (Mass.) High School, where I continued through the school year, at the same time pursuing a careful study of vocal music with Mr. Charles F. Webber, of Boston, with the intention of adopting the musical profession for my life work. During the Summer of 1884 an opening was presented to me for work in my chosen profession, at Marquette, Mich., so I left home in September, and commenced my work there as a teacher of vocal music. The Marquette Musical Association, an organization of sixty members, was placed under my directorship, and three concerts were given that season. Another branch of my work was instruction in vocal music in the public schools."

Spent the summer of 1885 at home, and returned East for a few weeks in February, 1886. Is president of the Y. M. C. A., of Marquette, and in that capacity has been instrumental in the equipment of its reading-rooms, gymnasium, etc. Since the Summer of 1884, has been a member of the National Music Teachers' Association.

THOMAS WASHINGTON COWGILL.

"After a Summer spent in Maine for the improvement of my health, with beneficial results, in September, 1883, I began to work for T. W. Bicknell & Co., educational publishers, of Boston, and in the interests of the firm visited the schools of almost every city and town in Ohio.

In September, 1884, I became teacher of English Literature and Anglo-Saxon in Mount Union College, Ohio, and while there delivered four public lectures on English Literature, a lecture on 'George Eliot's Novels' at Baldwin University, Berea, Ohio, and an address before the Σ. T. Fraternity of Mount Union College. I continued to teach there until July, 1885, when I resigned because of insufficient salary, and soon after accepted the general agency of Johnson's Cyclopædia, in which I am still engaged.

"On May 5, 1886, I was elected Professor of Greek in Kansas Wesleyan University, Salina, Kansas.

"At Berea, Ohio, December 20, 1883, I married Lillie Amanda Schuyler, youngest daughter of Dr. Aaron Schuyler (then President of Baldwin University), and Amanda Pearce Schuyler. January 15, 1886, our daughter, Alberta Amanda, was born. I became a member of the Harvard Club of Cleveland, March 10, 1886."

HENRY HOWLAND CRAPO.

"I spent the Summer of 1883 travelling in England and Europe. In October I returned to Cambridge and entered the Harvard Law School. I remained in Cambridge during the school year.

In the Summer of 1884 I studied in the law office of Crapo, Clifford & Clifford, at New Bedford, Mass. I completed my second year at the Law School. Since July, 1885, I have been in New Bedford, studying in the office above mentioned. I intend to offer myself for examination to enter the Bristol County Bar, in June, 1886."

EDWARD CUMMINGS.

"In the fall of 1883, I entered the Harvard Law School, but soon quitted it for the Divinity School. The following year I was a member of the School and at the same time assistant in Elocution. In the Spring of 1885 I received the degree of A.M., and also severed my connection with the Divinity School. Since then I have been an assistant in the English department at Harvard.

"It is a commonplace tale, as you can see, unadorned by the maiden name of a wife, or any touches of paternal pride. To be sure I've cruised about somewhat, and fished in waters legal, theological and pedagogical; but the waters have been troubled and my fare is rather light."

CHARLES PELHAM CURTIS.

Has been studying law since leaving college, spending two years in the Harvard Law School, and one year in the office of Ball, Storey & Tower, 40 Water Street, Boston, where he now is; also studied with Prince & Peabody, Boston, during the Summer of 1884.

WALTER CURTIS.

Has been in the export commission business in New York City, having entered the employ of Strulla & Julia. Since graduation has spent nine months in Spain. Is a member of the Puritan Club, Boston.

MARSHALL HENRY CUSHING.

Returned to Cambridge after graduation to study law until some sort of newspaper work could be obtained, and attended a few lectures of the first year course. He then secured the Harvard correspondence of the Boston Daily Globe, did local reporting for the Cambridge Tribune, and published the Harvard Index for 1883–4. After six weeks he severed his connection with the Tribune, and in March, 1884, engaged with the Globe to "do assignments" on the "city force"; but upon reporting for duty, he found that the night editor wanted to "break in" a man for the "night desk," and that Cushing "might do," so he was put to editing "copy." When, in September, 1884, C. M. Hammond, the night editor, was made assistant managing editor, Cushing was promoted to his chair.

WALTER REEVES DAME.

"The first year after leaving college I remained at home, studying law in my father's office and doing a little tutoring in addition. For the last two years I have studied at the Boston University Law School, from which I hope to graduate this coming June, and expect then to try my examination for admission to the Bar."

WALTER ELIJAH DAMON.

"On September 1, 1883, I accepted an offer to teach classics in S. C. Shortlidge's Academy, Media, Pa., and have been employed in the same place since that time. As I am to end my engagement here this year, I would suggest to any ambitious classmate that Media Academy, as a place for acquiring a large and varied experience at a small remuneration, is without an equal. It is my intention to continue in the profession of a teacher, and I shall aim to secure a place in future where the above considerations are reversed.

"I was married December 24, 1884, to Miss Mabel Beal of Pembroke, Mass., daughter of George B. and Mary A. Beal."

WILLIAM LAWRENCE DANA.

"Directly after leaving college, in June, 1883, I began the study of medicine in Portland, Maine. In connection with two institutions,—the Portland School for Medical Instruction, and the Medical School of Maine (the latter being connected with Bowdoin College, and located at Brunswick, Me.)—I have pursued a regular three years' course in medicine, and expect to take a degree from the Medical School in June of this year."

GIBSON MALLORY DAVIS.

"After a Summer spent in New England, I returned in September, 1883, to my home in Louisville, where I have since resided. Soon after my return I entered the wholesale dry goods house of Davis, Mallory & Co., and am still with them. I have made no journeys worthy of mention; in October last I went to Arkansas, and spent six weeks very pleasantly hunting and shooting. We are just about to organize a Harvard club in Louisville, and shall have at the outset a membership of twenty. Of this club I shall, of course, become a member."

JOSEPH EDWIN DAVIS.

After graduation, entered the Lincoln National Bank of Boston, and occupied successively the positions of collection clerk and bookkeeper. In April, 1884, he resigned his position there to accept a better one in the Boston Woven Hose Co., manufacturers of rubber goods. In August, 1885, he undertook the management of this business, with the position of Treasurer, which office he now holds. His residence is with his parents, at Lynn, Mass.

STANTON DAY.

"Within a few weeks after leaving college, I became a reporter on the Boston Globe. About the first of the November following, I left the Globe, and entered the office of W. E. L. Dillaway, as a student of law. In February of 1884, I left Mr. Dillaway's office and entered the Harvard Law School. I am still connected with that branch of our University, and in addition have, for the past eight months, been associated with E. W. Cate of Boston. My position in his office is that of student. I have spent much time in literary work, but have not as yet published anything of enough importance to claim authorship."

ARTHUR CLARK DENNISTON.

Immediately after graduation he went abroad, intending to travel for fifteen months in England and on the Continent. Passing July and August in England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales, he sailed for Antwerp, and, after visiting the chief cities of the Netherlands, reached Dresden October 1, where he found quarters in a German family, in order to improve his acquaintance with the language. He next visited Berlin and Vienna, then on to Florence and Rome, where he found Lee and H. B. Cabot, '83, who were passing the Winter there. In company with the latter, he made a three weeks' trip to Greece, visiting Olympia and making excursions from Athens. Then back to Italy, and thence to Paris, where he spent seven weeks—the greater part of the time in a French family. He now returned to Dresden, remaining until July, 1884; then travelled in Switzerland, and in September sailed for home.

"I then returned to Cambridge and took the first year course in the Law School. The next September I entered the law office of John C. Bullitt, in Philadelphia. I should have been glad to study another year at Cambridge, but the requirements of the Philadelphia Bar necessitate two years' residence in the city before one is allowed to take the examination, and I thought it best to begin my studies as soon as possible. I am still a student in the above office.

"During the five months I passed in Germany, I was able to get a firm hold of the language; and my stay of seven weeks in Paris enabled me to understand French, as well as to make myself understood, satisfactorily — neither of which I could do before. I have become a member of the Puritan club, of Boston."

GEORGE BADGER DEWSON.

"In the fall of 1883, I entered the General Ticket Department of the Old Colony R. R.; remained there until early in the Spring of 1884, when I went into the Continental National Bank, of Boston, as general clerk. I remained there until January, 1886, when, on account of my health, I went to the sheep ranch of Mr. H. C. Adams, a few miles from Ellsworth, Kansas, where I expect to remain until July, 1886."

JOSEPH DORR.

In the Autumn, after graduation, he entered the office of his father, a broker, Kilby Street, Boston, where he has since remained. He was married, June 15, 1885, at Chicago, Ill., to Josephine Swift, daughter of the late Alden G. Swift, formerly of Massachusetts, and Catharine (Marsh) Swift, of New York. He is a director of the Boston Oakum Co., and a member of the Puritan Club.

EDMOND SCOTT DOW.

In the fall of 1883, he entered the Harvard Medical School, which he has attended regularly ever since. He is a member of the Schumann Glee Club, "organized for social and musical improvement." No travels and no publications.

GEORGE GARRETT DUNN.

"I regret that I shall be unable to give you a long account of myself since leaving college, simply for the reason that I have done nothing worthy of mention.

"Shortly after graduation, I went into business with Dunn Bros., Bankers, in Philadelphia, and expect to remain with them until old age or decrepitude compels me to retire."

MORRIS EARLE.

"After leaving college, I went immediately to Charleston, West Virginia, where I worked all Summer in a friend's woollen mill. I earned my board, and gained some knowledge of 'outlying deestricts'—so much so that I was glad to get back to my starting-place. After four months of travel and loafing, I entered business by joining the firm of W. H. Walmsley & Co., Opticians, of Philadelphia, of which I trust you have heard ere this, in a circular which I sent out to catch the eyes of my friends. Suffice it to say, I have been in business over two years, and am trying to turn the telescope in such a way that I may see large profits in the foreground, and a fine field for work in the background.

"In June, 1885, I sailed for England, where I remained for a few weeks, wholly on business. This I hope to do every year or so, as my work requires it.

"Since coming to Philadelphia, I have joined the Orpheus Club, which is similar to the Apollo Club of Boston. Am also a member of the University Club of Philadelphia, and the American Microscopical Society.

"I have written no books and published no pamphlets."

JAMES HAMLET BOLT EASTON.

Has been studying, during the three years since graduation, at the Harvard Law School. Was the anchor in the victorious Harvard Tug of War team at the intercollegiate meetings, in 1884, 1885, and 1886. Has not replied to circulars.

PERCIVAL JAMES EATON.

"Have resided at my home, in Maplewood, Mass., until recently. Am now in Boston, to stay till January, 1887.

"Have spent the past three years very pleasantly, studying medicine in the Medical School of our University.

2. "I am not married.

4. "Have been elected a member of the Boylston Medical Society, of Harvard University.

"Have also received an appointment in the Children's Hospital, Boston (1886)."

JOHN HUBBARD WILKINS EDGERLY.

"Since the Summer following graduation, my time has been spent as follows:—October, 1883, to December, 1883, reading law at Boston University; January, 1884, to January, 1885, in operating department of the A. T. & S. F. R. R., Las Vegas, N. M.; January, 1885, to January, 1886, in the office of the Treasurer of the same road, Topeka, Kansas; since February, 1886, in the office of Assistant Auditor of the California Southern R. R., National City, Cal."

HARRY RANSOM EDWARDS.

"Since leaving college I have lived in Cleveland, employed in mercantile pursuit. I entered the employ of Edwards, Townsend & Co., wholesale grocers, in August, 1883, and have remained with the firm since that date.

"As yet am not married.

"During the Spring of 1884, I passed four months in New Mexico. As my stay there was so short, I formed no decided ideas as to the prosperity of the territory. Can only say I was pleased to return to Ohio.

"I am a member of the Union Club of Cleveland."

WILLIAM CROWNINSHIELD ENDICOTT.

"After graduation, I went to Europe, where I stayed about three months, travelling in England, Ireland, Scotland, and France.

"Returning in the Autumn of 1883, I entered the law office of Tuckerman, Huntington & Fitz, in Salem, Mass., and there remained until the Autumn of 1884, when I went to the Harvard Law School. After a year spent there, I returned to the Salem office, and, in April, 1886, passed the bar examination. Early in June, I expect to be admitted to the Essex County Bar, where, eventually, I shall probably practise."

ROBERT BERRY ENNIS.

"The Autumn and Winter of 1883 I spent in Wyoming, with a surveying party. The following Spring and Summer found me investigating the cattle interests of New Mexico. In the Spring of 1886, we bought two thousand head of cattle in Texas, and drove these across the 'Staked Plains' into New Mexico, to our ranch on the Rio Conchos, San Miguel County, where I am now engaged in looking after them. The business is a life in the saddle, and during the spring, summer and autumn months, our beds are on the prairies wherever night overtakes us."

GEORGE WILLIAM EVANS.

"Just before graduating, I secured a position in the Indianapolis Classical School, and began work there as instructor, in September, 1883. Though nominally 'having charge of the mathematics and science,' my work comprehended English, Latin, and Greek.

The institution is a private school of creditable reputation, owned and operated by Theo. L. Sewell, A. B. (Harvard, 1874). From it came East our unfortunate classmate Harvey, who was drowned during the Christmas holidays of 1880.

"During my stay in Hoosierdom, the Presidential campaign was fought, and I enlisted under the leadership of our Alma Mater. As secretary of the Mugwump Executive Committee, I held the only 'office of trust' that ever fell to my lot.

"In June, 1885, I returned to Boston, and entered the English High School, in September, as teacher of Algebra. I consider the situation in many respects desirable, and unless some unforeseen catastrophe should overtake me, my permanent address will be there.

"I was married in Lebanon, N. H., July 26, 1883, to Miss Mary Teresa Taylor, of Boston. Richard Taylor Evans, my only child, was born April 27, 1885."

WILLIAM FAXON.

"In the fall of 1883, I entered the Boston Law School, and the law office of Ranney & Clark, Court Street, Boston, in which latter place I still continue. This coming June I shall graduate from the Law School. In January, 1886, I was admitted to the Suffolk Bar."

FRANCIS BRITAIN FAY.

"During the year following graduation, I was employed in one of the offices of the Old Colony R. R. Co., in Boston. In the fall of 1884, I entered the Harvard Law School, where I have been up to the present time, and where I expect to remain another year."

LYNDE RAYMOND FERRIS.

"After graduating, I took a trip to Europe, where I remained about four months, returning in October. In November, I left for the West, spending the Winter in Los Angeles, where I have passed the greater part of my time up to this period. In December, of 1884, I made a trip to the City of Mexico, returning to Boston via Cuba and Florida.

"While in Los Angeles, most of my time was spent in prospecting through the country."

JOHN WILLIAM FOX.

"After leaving Harvard, I went immediately to New York City, and a week later began work on the New York Sun. In the following October, I gave up my position, and entered the Law School at Columbia College. Circumstances forced me to resign the law before Christmas, and, in March following, I was employed on the New York Times. I continued on the Times until February, 1885, when I was compelled to go home on account of illness. I remained at home, in Paris, Kentucky, ill and practically useless, until January last, when I came to New York for medical advice. At present (February, 1886), I expect to be able to resume work in a few months."

RICHARD PEARCE FRANCIS.

"In the fall of 1883, I entered the Harvard Medical School, and hope to complete my course there in June, 1886. My movements after that time are uncertain.

"I am a member of the Boylston Medical Society."

WALDO FULLER.

Writes from Dolores, La Plata County, Colorado, as follows: "Immediately on leaving college, I went to Buffalo, N. Y., where I went to work in the office of one of the transportation companies, owning boats of the great lakes and the canal. I remained there about three months, when I left to take a position in Albany; but this did not turn out as I expected, and I returned home to Cambridge, where I remained until June, 1885, looking about in the meanwhile for something to do. In June I started West for Colorado, to take a look at the cattle business. I am still in Colorado, and have serious thoughts of becoming a 'cowboy.'"

*JAMES NEWTON GARRATT.

James Newton Garratt was born at Providence, R. I., August 22, 1862. At an early age he came to East Boston, and there received his youthful education. He entered the English High School, Boston, in 1876, but having decided to go to college, he was admitted to the Boston Latin School, September 3, 1877. Upon his graduation from there, in 1880, he was awarded a "Franklin medal," and, in the fall of the same year, entered Harvard, without conditions, and with "high credit in mathematics."

Of him Mr. Moses Merrill, head master of the Latin School, said:—"He stood high in a class quite remarkable for its scholarship. He was an earnest and faithful student, punctual and prompt in the execution of every duty, an attentive and thorough scholar; unobtrusive, gentle, and amiable, he won the love of his teachers and fellow pupils. His integrity was above question. He was a graduate of more than usual promise."

The following tribute from Mr. Arthur I. Fiske will be appreciated by those fortunate enough to have been under his instruction:—"I am often troubled to find that names and faces of our pupils have no longer any place in my mind, and that regarding too many who have recited to me for a considerable time, I could give but a very brief account. No such obscurity clings, in the minds of any who ever knew him, to the name, the brilliant scholarship, the charming face, and beautiful character of James Newton Garratt. He gained my unstinted admiration while he was with us; and now that he is gone. I mourn the loss the world has sustained."

His college record was extremely creditable. Entering with the Class of '84, he succeeded, by doing extra work, in graduating with our own Class, receiving his degree "magna cum laude." He remained at Harvard one year more, taking the degree of A. M. in 1884. During the Summer following graduation, he was assistant in Qualitative Analysis. in the "Summer Course in Chemistry"; and, in the winter of 1883–4, he received a Boylston prize of $100 for a dissertation on "The Origin of Meteorites."

His ambition and love of study being not yet satisfied, he determined to continue his work abroad, hoping to take the degree of Ph.D. in Chemistry from a German university. In August, 1884, he started for Zurich, Switzerland, and entered the Polytechnic Institute there. His letters to his parents and friends, at this time, express the pleasure afforded him by the opportunities offered for the pursuit of his favorite study, Chemistry.

On Thursday, January 29, 1885, he, in company with a fellow student, Mr. Hugh Binney, of St. Helen's, England, went to the "Greifensee" to skate; and while thus engaged, the ice gave way, and both young men were drowned. Our classmate's body was not recovered until the following Monday, that of his friend not for some time afterwards. Resolutions of sympathy and regret were passed, at a gathering of the English and American residents in Zurich.

Garratt's funeral took place from East Boston, March 4, 1885, and he was buried at Woodlawn Cemetery, Mass. At the ceremony, a quartet from the Harvard Glee Club, composed of Easton and Lilienthal, '83, and Eliot and Paul Thorndike, '84, rendered appropriate music. Of the eight pall-bearers, four were from the Sunday School he attended, and four from the College—Morse, '83, Frost and Darling, '84, and Peterson, '85.

Although not identified with our Class throughout its college course, the warm friends he possessed among its members will mourn the untimely close of so blameless and promising a young life.

WILLIAM HALSEY GARRISON.

"Immediately after leaving college, I was offered the position of principal of the Helena (Montana) Classical School, which I accepted, and managed the school successfully until the Autumn of 1885, when I entered the Harvard Law School. I left the latter at Christmas, and accepted the position as teacher of Latin and Greek in the Porter Academy, at Charleston, S. C. I am a member here of the Freundschafts Bund, or club composed of Germans."

CHARLES WALTER GEROULD.

After graduation, he remained for a few weeks at Harvard, to take a course in chemistry, and then went to Cape Ann, Mass., where he stayed until September. While there he secured a position in the Gloucester (Mass.) High School, and, at Christmas, was made sub-master, which position he held until June, 1885. In Gloucester, he took an active part in the Unitarian Church and Sunday School work, was a member of a social and literary society, and found his occupation of teaching both pleasant and profitable.

"It was with regret, therefore, that I left Gloucester to come to Chicago, in August, 1885, in order to establish a private school. Rooms in a new block were built to my order, giving the best private school accommodations in Chicago. Four people from Massachusetts constitute our teaching force. We have had an auspicious beginning, and succeeded, financially, beyond our expectations.

"I have, however, an offer to sell out, and, as I dislike Chicago and Chicago standards very strongly,—but more because I have now had sufficient proof that a private school in a great city must always be a disappointment to a conscientious teacher in every way except as a money-getting institution,—I have determined to accept the offer made me, and return to Massachusetts."

Since graduation, has made several trips to Chicago and to the White Mountains, one of the latter, in January, 1884, recorded in the Boston Transcript. In May, 1884, he started for California, travelling as secretary for Count James de Pourtalès, and having charge of a party which visited Colorado Springs, South Park, Pike's Peak, Salt Lake, Yosemite Valley, Yellowstone National Park, Niagara, and other places of interest.

CLARENCE GETCHELL.

"In September, 1883, I secured a position as one of the Faculty of Phillips Exeter Academy and ever since have had charge of the courses in Physics, Chemistry and Natural History, in that institution."

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN GOODNOUGH.

"After leaving college, I spent a year at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, taking a special course in Civil Engineering, and since then have been engaged in the practice of this profession.

"I am not married nor have I made any journeys."

CHARLES HALL GRANDGENT.

"Toward the end of August, 1883, I sailed from New York, with the intention of spending three years abroad, for the purpose of gaining a thorough, practical knowledge of the principal European languages, familiarizing myself with the chief literary works of the Continent, and pursuing, in several universities, studies on philology in its various branches. To accomplish the first of these objects, I adopted the plan of associating almost exclusively with the natives of the country in which I was stopping, establishing myself in their midst, and following their mode of life. That the execution of this design entailed many hardships can readily be imagined; but their number and severity can be only faintly conceived by one who has not endured them. The different countries vary, however, very much in this respect; in Germany I encountered no privations worth speaking of, while another month's stay in Spain would, I am sure, have furnished my name with the distinction of a cross in the next catalogue.

"The month of September, 1883, I spent in Paris. Then I started for Italy, and after stopping at Lucerne and Florence, settled down for four months in Siena. At first I found this perfectly preserved relic of the Middle Ages, with its beautiful surroundings and its records of the first efforts of Tuscan art, extremely interesting; but, as the months went by, a mouldy feeling invaded me, and in the middle of February, 1884, I fled to Naples, and thence to Rome. At the end of March, having passed six months in Italy and learned the language well, I transferred my headquarters to Leipzig, making halts by the way at Venice and Munich.

"In Leipzig I entered the University for the summer semester, and followed courses on Phonetics, Early German Literature, and Goethe and Schiller. Although I found most of the lecturers excellent, and many branches of study ably represented, I cannot help thinking that we Americans have a tendency to overrate educational advantages abroad and to undervalue those at home. I have seen no university in Europe that offers courses equal in number and variety to those provided at Harvard.

"At the close of the summer semester, in August, 1884, I indulged in a pleasant tour through Berlin, Dresden, Prague, Vienna, Salzburg, Munich, and Nuremberg; and then I spent six weeks with some German friends in Erfurt, from which town as a centre I made many pedestrian trips into the Thuringian Forest. Finally, in the latter part of September, I went to Paris to stay nearly ten months. During this period I attended lectures on the Romance Languages at the Ecole des Chartes; and on the Poems of the Round Table, the Poem of 'St. Alexis,' the Letter l in French, Romance Versification, Latin Phonetics, the Verb in the Indo-European Languages, the Theory of the Indo-European Vowels, and Old Irish, at the Collège de France. For Romance Philology, scientifically considered, there is certainly no place like Paris; and many other subjects can be studied there to great advantage. In my leisure moments, I occupied myself with oil-painting in the studio of an American artist.

"Leaving Paris about the middle of July, I passed the Summer in Heidelberg, Erfurt and Leipzig, and then returned to Italy, this time choosing Florence for my abode. There, as in Siena, I had excellent chances to practise the language and study the literature, although, unfortunately, the University did not open until just before I left, in the latter part of December, 1885. My destination was Seville, and I reached it by way of Genoa, Marseilles, Barcelona, and Valencia. I struggled through six weeks in Seville, and six more in Madrid, visiting in the meantime Cordova and Granada. The language I learned very fast, partly because of its resemblance to Italian, and partly owing to the ultra-Spanish character of my surroundings. I found no courses at the Madrid University worth following. On March 22, I left for Paris, where I am now, and shall be for some three months, attending lectures at the Collège de France."

He was appointed, in April, 1886, instructor in Modern Languages at Harvard University, for a term of three years.

PERCY STICKNEY GRANT.

"Since October, 1883, I have been a member of the Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge. For the last two years have also been a member of the Graduate Department of our Alma Mater, and have had charge of a mission of the Episcopal Church at Canton, Massachusetts."

EDWARD EVERETT HALE.

1. "Entered at Harvard University as resident student of History. Candidate for Ph. D.

2. "Am not yet married, and cannot therefore give time and place. In fact, cannot even form a conjecture as to the maiden name of my (future) wife.

3. "I have been in Washington for a short time every Winter since graduating, and was seduced by the extremely low excursion rates to visit New Orleans last year about Carnival time. My impressions—very pleasant ones—would take too much space here, even if I were able to record them in an entertaining and agreeable way—in which case I should send them to the Century.

4. "I have received no college degrees, and am a member of no clubs or societies either social, etc., of which the names are widely known beyond the circle of members. I have held no public offices of profit, honor, or trust.

5. "Although I have been working over historical materials for two years or more, I have as yet published nothing. The only exception to this is the 'Notebook kept by Thomas Lechford, Esq., Lawyer, in Boston, Massachusetts Bay, from June 27, 1638 to July 29, 1641,' which I was employed to edit for the American Antiquarian Society, the date of publishing being October 21, 1885.

"Addresses at public meetings have not frequently fallen within my experience; but in following the rule of speaking when anyone is fool enough to ask you, I have delivered two lectures—the one on 'Sir Harry Vane in New England and Old England,' in the Old South Church, Boston, during the Summer of 1884, and the other on 'Foreign Interference in Egypt,' before the Y. M. C. A. of Providence, R. I., in February 1885."

HENRY MARTYN HALL.

Has been studying law since graduation, in the office of Hale & Hamlin, at his home, Ellsworth, Maine. Was admitted to practice in the courts of Maine in May, 1886.

JAMES MILTON HALL.

"In the fall of 1883 I entered the Harvard Law School, and pursued my studies there for two years. During the present college year I have remained at the University as a resident graduate. Meanwhile, for little more than a year, I have been a student in a law office in Boston."

CHARLES SUMNER HAMLIN.

"Since leaving college I have been studying in the Harvard Law School. I was admitted to the Suffolk Bar in December, 1885, and shall begin practice in Boston next June.

"I have done little or nothing in the way of literary work, but have, however, given considerable time to music, and have published some songs."

CHARLES MIFFLIN HAMMOND.

"After graduating I made my home at New London, Connecticut, my headquarters, and did nothing in the way of work till January, 1884. On the 18th of that month I left New York for California, coming via the S. P. R. R.; and after passing a few days at Los Angeles, reached San Francisco on the 28th. On February 1st I went to Rutherford, Napa Co., where I worked as a laborer in the vineyard of Captain Niebaum till the first of August. During that time I made a trip to Lake County, where I bought my present ranch. On leaving Rutherford in August I stayed in Lakeport till November, superintending the erection of our buildings. On November 1, 1884, my brother and I took possession of the ranch, and here I am yet, with every prospect of remaining. My occupation is ranching, or, as the word is understood here, farming in general. I raise stock of all kinds, crops of all kinds, have twenty-five acres of vines, and five acres of trees, fruit and stock being my chief aims.

"California is delightful; the cold amounts to but little and everything will grow here, but the 'almighty dollar' is as hard to get as it is in the East, though fewer of them are necessary here in order to live with the same comfort as there. In November, 1885, I was elected a member of the Harvard Club of San Francisco, which organization seems to have for its end a dinner every three months.

"A few words about the place may not be amiss. I am on the banks of Clear Lake, which is twenty-five miles long, and from one-quarter of a mile to nine miles wide. The fishing is excellent, and for boating nothing could be better. In the hills around us are deer, coons, foxes, wildcats, etc., and the mountains are not far off where bear can be found. At present our only communication is by staging thirty-five or fifty miles, but there is every prospect of a railroad coming here in the near future.

"About half a mile away, my brother, G. G. Hammond, has a house, and is in partnership with W. O. Edmands, S. S., Harvard, '83; and for a year L. B. Strong, S. S., '83, has been with us, so we have the reputation of being a Harvard colony."

GARDINER GREENE HAMMOND.

Has been employed in the same occupation as his brother, and in the same locality; and has not, therefore, considered it necessary to send a separate account.

MELLEN WOODMAN HASKELL.

Writes from Leipzig, Germany:—"The first two years after graduation I remained in Cambridge, studying mathematics, and taking the degree of A. M. in 1885. I was then appointed to a Parker Fellowship, and have continued my studies in Leipzig."

HAMMOND VINTON HAYES.

"After graduation, I determined to pursue a course of study in Experimental Physics, a study which had much interested me in my Senior year, and for which I had always had an inclination. I therefore studied a large part of the Summer on mathematics, and in September entered the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, pursuing there the regular course in Electrical Engineering. In the following June I was admitted as a regular student of the fourth year. The course in that institution appeared to me to be too limited in a mathematical direction, and with the advice of my instructors I returned to Cambridge. The Summer of '84 was spent in the study of applied mathematics, and the Winters of 1884 and 1885 in pursuing courses at Harvard and at the same time that part of the fourth year studies at the Institute which were not similar to those pursued at Cambridge. In June, 1885, I received the degrees of Ph. D. and A. M. from Harvard University, for a thesis on the 'Rotational Effect in a Magnetic Field,' and other papers. In September, October, and November of 1885, I devoted myself entirely to the study of Sound, and its application to the telephone. On December 7th I was put in charge of the Mechanical Department of the American Bell Telephone Company, which position I still occupy.

"I have published during the last year the following articles: In the American Journal of Arts and Sciences: 'Photography as applied to Electrical Measurements,' and 'A New Method of producing Alternating Currents from a direct current Dynamo-Electrical Machine'; (both of the above republished in the London and Edinburgh Philosophical Magazine, and translated and republished in La Lumière Electrique); and a paper entitled 'Irregularities in the Action of Galvanic Batteries,' translated and republished in La Lumière Electrique.

"Also, in the Proceedings of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, an article entitled 'The Dynamical Action of an Electrical Current.'

"My life, aside from my work, has been most uneventful. I am a member of the M. P. Club, The Society of Arts, and the Polygon Club."

WALTER EDWARD HAYWARD.

"Until April, 1885, I lived at Attleboro, Mass., where I was engaged in the manufacture of jewelry, working 'at the bench.' At that time I became a partner in the firm of C. E. Hayward & Co., and went to New York City where I have been, since that time, in the distributing office of the firm. I have married no wives, taken no journeys and written no books."

GEORGE HENRY HEILBRON.

"In October, 1883, I entered the Law School of Boston University, where I studied law until January 1st, 1884. I then left the Law School to take a position upon the Boston Globe as court reporter. After serving in that capacity nine months, I resigned my position and became interested in the publication of the Daily Law Record, a daily legal newspaper published in Boston. In October, 1885, I re-entered the Law School, being admitted to the senior class, and am now a candidate for the degree of LL.B. Since leaving college I have resided in Boston."

ERNEST FLAGG HENDERSON.

"In the fall of 1883, returned to Harvard principally for the purpose of taking Professor Emerton's course on the Sources of History, and became a candidate for the degree of A.M. The year was a most profitable one, and the History course proved so interesting that I determined to take up that study as a profession. After receiving my degree, I decided to go abroad and study in a German university. I sailed on June 28, 1884, travelled in Southern Germany for six weeks, and settled down in Berlin early in August. I was most fortunate in my choice of teachers, and by November 1st (when the term opened), I was able to attend the lectures with profit. I listened to Bresslau, Wattenbach and Weizäcker and worked under them all Winter.

"February 24, 1885, I started for Italy in the company of three other American students from Berlin. We visited Bamberg and Nuremberg on our way down, and at the end of four days arrived at Lucerne. We crossed the Alps by the St. Gothard railway, spent several days in Milan, and then proceeded along the western coast, taking in all the cities of importance. We spent three weeks in Rome, ten days in and around Naples, penetrating as far South as the g nd old temple of Paestum. We returned by way of Florence, Bologna and Venice, then by Vienna, Hof and Leipzig, and so back to Berlin.

"The Spring term began May 1st and lasted till August 1st. I was admitted to the historical Seminar under Professor Bresslau, and worked with other members on the Italian Chronicle of Dino Compagni, which had been declared by Scheffer-Boichorst to be a clever forgery.

"The Summer of 1885 I spent in Switzerland with members of my family, and was in great danger one day, on the Balmhorn (12,100 feet high). Three feet from where we were standing my stick loosened a large mass of snow which fell silently into an abyss—thus giving us the first intimation that what we had taken for firm ground was only a fringe of snow, stretching out several feet beyond the edge of the precipice.

"September 9th found me in Florence, deep in the study of Italian. I took two lessons a day for five weeks and managed to dispose of the Divine Comedy, and to make myself understood by people who had the patience to listen to me.

"October 25, I returned to Berlin and remained there until February 24, 1886, when I sailed for New York from Bremen, arriving March 6. I saw my family, spent two or three days in Boston, and March 13 sailed for Liverpool. I went over to Paris for the practice in French, and expect to return to Berlin for the Spring term beginning May 1st."

GEORGE ROSS HEWITT.

"Since leaving college, I have resided most of the time in Hartford, Conn., where I have been pursuing theological studies.

"I have not added to the list of my published works since graduation; and, with the exception of a Fourth-of-July oration, the only addresses I have made have been of a religious character.

"During the last three years, I have passed through various experiences common to the life of man, which might prove interesting to readers of these pages; but I will refrain from enlarging thereupon. Suffice it to say, that I am persuaded life is not altogether a pleasure nor altogether a pain, but largely a commingling of the two."

GEORGE HEYWOOD.

Since graduation has been attending the Harvard Medical School. Is not married, and continues to reside in Concord, Mass.

ARCHIE LIVINGSTONE HODGES.

"Early in the Autumn of 1883, I obtained a situation in a private school in Boston which I held during the year, doing besides some private tutoring. In 1884, I entered the graduate department of Harvard as a candidate for Ph. D. in Philosophy; but through illness and other causes, was unable to do a full year's work. Last Summer I was elected to the sub-mastership of the Milford [Mass.] High School, which position I still hold."

BENJAMIN BLAKE HOLMES.

"Since November, 1883, I have been Principal of the Winchendon [Mass.] High School. In 1884, I received a Head-mastership certificate from the Supervisors of the Boston Schools."

CHARLES WITHERLE HOOKE.

After graduation, obtained a position on the Boston Daily Journal, but soon quitted it for the Daily Globe, with which paper he was connected until the Spring of 1886, when he went to New York City, where he now is. Has not replied to circulars.

FRANKLIN HENRY HOOPER.

Has been employed, since graduation and previously during a part of his Senior year, in the office of the Century Co., Union Square, New York, where he intends to continue.

GEORGE EBENEZER HOWE.

"From the time of graduation until June, 1885, I studied law at the Harvard Law School, and after a long vacation entered the law office of W. E. L. Dillaway in Boston. I took the examination for admission to the Bar of Suffolk County on December 19, 1885, and on January 26, 1886, was admitted."

EDWIN CULL HOWELL.

Left Cambridge just before Commencement, 1881, and taught at Asbury Park, N. J., for one year. In the fall of 1882, returned to Cambridge and took his degree with our Class. During the Winter of 1884, was instructor in mathematics at Johns Hopkins University, and has since been teaching in a school kept by W. S. Marston (Harvard, '74), at Baltimore. Has not replied to circulars.

CHARLES JOSEPH HUBBARD.

"During the two college years 1883-84 and 1884-85 I was Secretary in the Office of Harvard College, the duties requiring about half my time. Besides this, during the first year, I did reporting and other newspaper work at the College. Near the end of that year I began to study law, and in September, 1884, entered the Harvard Law School, second year. My only occupation this year is that of student in the Law School."

ERNEST SANFORD JACK.

"I entered the Harvard Medical School in the fall of 1883, and have been there ever since. I am a member of the Boylston Medical Society."

HENRY BARTON JACOBS.

"Immediately after graduation, I was appointed assistant in Botany at Harvard, and entered upon the work the following Autumn, at the same time taking up the study of Medicine at the Harvard Medical School and attending such lectures as my work would allow, but without joining the school. At the end of the year I was re-appointed assistant, and was likewise admitted to the second year class of the Medical School, in full standing.

"In the fall of 1885, I resigned the post of assistant in Botany, but retained the office of Proctor. In March, 1886, I left Cambridge, and also severed my connection with the Medical School, to come to Woodbourne as assistant to Dr. H. R. Stedman.

"My Summers have been occupied in tutoring boys in Natural History, and in this work I have made an excursion through the British Provinces. I am a member of the Boylston Medical Society."

WILLIAM CHARLES JENNINGS.

The Summer following graduation was spent at his home in Salt Lake City, and in travelling among the mountains of Utah and in Butte City, Montana.

He then entered the Harvard Law School, where he has continued ever since and expects to graduate this coming June. In the first year he was chosen a member of the Holmes Law Club.

Has spent the two Summer vacations of 1884 and 1885 at Jefferson, N. H., and Hull, Mass.; and is to sail for Europe July 1, 1886, with the intention of remaining about a year.

FRANK ELWOOD JENNISON.

"The position as instructor in Phillips Exeter Academy, which I accepted soon after graduation, I gladly gave up to come to New York in the fall of 1884, where I have since been engaged in the Banking and Brokerage business with Morgan & Bartlett.

"I am a member of the Harvard Club."

LOUIS OSBORN JOHNSON.

"In October, 1883, I entered the employ of the firm of Henry R. Worthington, Manufacturers of Steam Pumping Engines and various styles of Hydraulic Machinery. Was in their branch office at Boston for a few weeks, then went to their Philadelphia office where I spent the Winter; in the following Spring (1884), I returned to the Boston office and have remained there up to the present time."

PAUL JONES.

"During the first two years after graduation, I taught the English Branches and Natural Sciences at Cornwall Heights' School, a family boarding-school for boys, at Cornwall-on-Hudson, N. Y.

"Since January 1, 1886, I have been studying law in the office of Mr. A. L. Gove, Rochester, Minn., and during the past Winter have been a member of a Shakspere club."

FRANK WARTON KAAN.

Taught one year in the Heathcote School, Buffalo, N. Y., and one year in the High School, at Waltham, Mass. The third year he has been attending the Harvard Law School.

PATRICK MICHAEL KEATING.

"For a year after graduation I pursued the study of law at the Harvard Law School. In the Summer of 1884, I changed my residence from Cambridge to Boston, and entered the office of Thomas J. Gargan, where I continued my law studies till I was admitted to the Bar, in July, 1885. Since then I have been practising in Boston where I have also resided."

GEORGE PAUL KEITH.

"For six months after graduation, I was at home in Wollaston, Mass., with my eyes wide open, looking for some fairly congenial occupation. In January, 1884, I went into the leather business with Dunn, Greene & Co., 30 South Street, Boston; and I went through the hardest course of sprouts for two years that I ever experienced. Recently I received an offer of a position as superintendent at the tannery belonging to the firm, at Hudson, Mass., where I now am."

WARREN FRANKLIN KELLOGG.

"In September, 1883, I entered the office of James R. Osgood & Co., publishers, of Boston, and have remained with them and their successors, Ticknor & Co., ever since that time."

EDWARD KENT.

"Upon leaving college, I spent nearly a year in Germany, hearing lectures during the Winter Semester at the University in Berlin, and during the Summer Semester at the University in Göttingen.

"After a few months of travel on the Continent and through England, I came back to this country, and since my return have been reading law at the Harvard Law School."

CHOKICHI KIKKAWA.

"I left New York, July 4, 1883, for Liverpool. After spending the Summer in Europe, I sailed from Brindisi in November, and arrived at Tokio in the latter part of December.

"For about a year after my return to Japan, my time was spent in travel and study; but finally, in November, 1884, I obtained a situation at the Foreign Office, where I still remain.

"During 1884, I made two journeys to the Western part of Japan, and one to Corea."

STEPHEN HERRICK KNIGHT.

Since graduation he has been in New York City, engaged in the study of medicine.

ALFRED CHURCH LANE.

Writes from Heidelberg, Germany, as follows: "The Summer after graduation I travelled in the United States, and the following Winter taught Mathematics, and studied for Ph.D. in Geology, at Harvard. The Summer of 1884 was largely spent in geologic work in Kentucky, and in the Winter of the same year I was again at Harvard in the same position as before.

The next Summer I travelled in England, Scotland, and up the Rhine to Switzerland. Your questions find me, at the close of a term in this University spent in study with Professor Rosenbusch, preparing to go to Italy. My impressions of travel I will spare us both.

"I have published nothing except a few mathematic notes not of 'general interest.' Under 'membership of societies' should be reckoned probably the Harvard Natural History Society, the New England Meteorological Society, and the Student Krank-Verein."

JOSEPH LEE.

"Immediately after the Yale Race, I sailed for Europe, where I remained for a year, sailing for home on June 4, 1884. I was in my father's office, and in that of Lee, Higginson & Co., most of the following Summer. In October, 1884, I entered the Harvard Law School, which I have attended ever since."

HOWARD LILIENTHAL.

In the Autumn after graduation, entered the Harvard Medical School where he has since been pursuing his studies. January 1, 1886, was appointed interne at the McLean Asylum, Somerville, Mass., for a term of one year.

Is a member of the Longwood Cricket Club, the Boylston Medical Society, the Bach Choir (a private musical organization), and the Boylston Club (musical). Holds, also, the position of Tenor in the Berkeley Street (Congregational) Church Quartet, of Boston.

Has written a few verses which appeared in Life. Dates and titles forgotten.

HERBERT MARSHALL LLOYD.

"Your second summons is this moment received; and, that I may lighten your task as far as possible, I venture to suggest the following 'answers,' which may help you to embody in your account the information likely to afford most interest to the class:

"Since Commencement I have resided at Brooklyn, N. Y., and Montclair, N. J. I have been studying Law until December, 1885, when I was admitted to the Bar of New York by the General Term of the Supreme Court, Second Department. Since then I have been practising said profession and getting rich,—one week I made over a dollar. I have been with Miller, Peckham & Dixon, of New York, since January 1, 1885. I graduated from the Columbia Law School, in May, 1885, and I think I received the degree of LL.B. The Brooklyn papers said that I was a member of the 'Mugwump' Committee of One Hundred, in the fall of 1884, and it may have been so. I have held no offices of profit."

MORRIS LOEB.

Writes from Berlin:—"Immediately after Commencement, I sailed for Europe, and have remained on this side of the Atlantic ever since. Matriculating at the Berlin University in October, 1883, I at once entered the Laboratory of Professor A. W. Hofmann, and have been pursuing my chemical studies under his direction, with a view to qualifying for my doctor's degree, an end which I hope to achieve in the course of this year. During the many vacations which the academic year affords, I have visited pretty thoroughly the countries of Central Europe, as well as England and Scotland, being often brought face to face with the fact that we Americans are not the only ones who can boast of vast improvements in our institutions and methods, but that countries about which we know the least, could teach us the most.

"As to German student life, I confess that I came here with prejudices which I regret to say have been strengthened. While I have no reason to complain of either instructors or fellow students, I was sorry to find a materialism in the aims of life, a pedantic ignorance of all things outside of their own particular branch of study, for which I was not prepared. If you add that most students live unwholesomely, studiously shut themselves out from most refining influences, and spend the time, which in America is 'wasted' on Athletics, etc., in beer drinking, you will understand my main grounds of unfavorable criticism. In fact, I have often noticed here that a student cannot be treated as a gentleman de se; he must be met with the same distrust as if there were no such thing as the common tie a University ought to give.

"The only society which I have joined is the German Chemical Society, to whose journal I have made a contribution [Berichte D. Ch. G. XVIII, p. 2427]. I have also been secretary of the 'American Club at Berlin,' and scorer of the Berlin B.B.C."

WILLIAM ALDEN LOMBARD.

"I went to Europe in June, 1883, and travelled in Scotland, England, Holland, Belgium, Germany, Austria, Italy, Switzerland, and France; and returned to America, September 26th.

"The first of October, I began work as a clerk in the Lombard Investment Co. October 1, 1884, I was made Assistant Secretary, and February 1, 1886, Secretary of the Company, which position I now occupy.

"My residence is Brookline, Mass., for seven months of the year, and the other five months I spend in the West, visiting our various offices, and as Private Secretary to Benjamin Lombard, Jr., President of the Company.

"I have devoted myself exclusively to business, and have little else to record since leaving college."

AUGUSTUS MENDON LORD.

"During the year 1883-4, I was in the Harvard Divinity School. In 1884-5, I had charge of the department of English and History at the school of Messrs. Brown & Nichols (both of '78), in Cambridge; and also, every Saturday, I had classes at St. Mark's School, Southboro', Mass. The past year I have spent in the Divinity School, where I hope to remain without further interruption until I have completed the regular course.

"I have published pieces, in prose and verse, in the Atlantic Monthly, Spectator, Current, Transcript, and other periodicals; and last December published my first volume, 'A Book of Verses.' "

WILLIAM TYLER LORD.

"I registered, at the opening of the fall term of 1883, at the Harvard Medical School. After the completion of the school year in the following June, feeling the necessity of active occupation and pecuniary profit, I solicited and received employment upon the Boston Daily Globe. I remained in the service of this newspaper in the varying capacities of general reporter, court reporter, and special correspondent, until December, 1884, finding my duties pleasantly shared by several of my classmates, of '83. Meanwhile, I had again registered for a second year at the Harvard Medical School, and found time, notwithstanding my labors as newspaper scribe, to give to my medical studies, and was elected a member of the Boylston Medical Society. The Summer of 1885, I passed in medical and surgical apprenticeship at several of the Boston hospitals, and on October 10, after entering upon what was to be my last year of study, as a result of overwork or an occult microbe—let science determine—I was prostrated by what my physicians considered to be typhoid fever. By their advice I came South, in January, 1886, to Thomasville, Ga., to regain what I could of a considerably shattered constitution; and have certainly picked up much, while here, in health and strength."

With regard to the South as a field for business activity, he says: "I find that trade is sluggish, with but little ambition or ability on the part of business men to revive it. Owing to the exhausted condition of the soil in many places, and the difficulty in obtaining adequate labor, the country is comparatively nonproductive and consequently poor. Money is scarce, and at a high rate of interest, and a general air of delapidation and decay is everywhere apparent. I make these observations, having understood that a 'Southern boom' is supposed to be prevalent, inaugurated by specious representations in Southern journals.

"I am contemplating a trip to Italy in May, but in case I do not go, I shall spend the coming Summer in some of the mountainous districts of this country."

GEORGE EMERSON LOWELL.*

George Emerson Lowell, the second son of Judge John and Lucy B. (Emerson) Lowell, was born at Chestnut Hill, Mass., November 21, 1862, of a stock renowned in all its branches for learning and integrity. Percival Lowell, the first representative of the name in America, removed from Bristol, England, to Newbury, Mass., in 1639; and the first Harvard graduate among his descendants, was John Lowell, of the class of 1721. His son,

John Lowell, of the class of 1760, was appointed District Judge by Washington, and Circuit Judge by Adams. His son, again a John Lowell, of the class of 1786, was one of the "Essex Junto," and afterwards a member of the Hartford Convention. And his son, John Amory Lowell, of the class of 1815, the grandfather of George Emerson Lowell, was a Boston merchant, celebrated as one of the best botanists in this country, as well as for his connection with the Lowell Institute. On his mother's side, George was descended from the Emersons, his maternal grandfather being George B. Emerson, the well-known Boston teacher and scholar.

Of such an honorable line of ancestry George Lowell gave early promise of being a worthy representative. Preparing for college at the private school of William N. Eayrs, of Boston, he entered Harvard with honors, in 1879, and completed with us the four years course. His character, influence, and life at Cambridge require no written record, since the time can never come when they shall seem so distant as to need recalling; but, perhaps, it is fitting, in a Class Report, to speak briefly of the place he filled, the interests he stimulated, and the affection he inspired.

From the first he was prominent in Athletics, being a member of his Class Nine, and later a substitute on the University. Elected, while a Sophomore, Secretary of the Athletic Association, in his Senior year he became its President; and his earnestness, enthusiasm and ability achieved an influence for good in athletic sports which had a moral no less than a practical value.

In the purely social department of college life, he held a position unequalled, perhaps, by any of his day at Harvard. To say that he was a member of the A.D. Club, the A. Δ. Φ., the Art Club, the Institute of 1770, the Hasty Pudding, and an associate member of the Glee Club, is to indicate, it is true, his popularity with those societies; but it does not justly represent the wide extent of his fellowship and the catholicity of his nature. His frank interest and ready sympathy—qualities that above all else endeared him to his classmates—knew no distinctions of clique or set, but were freely enlisted in the service of any who chose to claim his confidence; and how helpful and encouraging was this generosity, many have cause gratefully to remember.

By his prominence in the more strictly literary and scientific societies, his many-sided brilliancy was again rendered conspicuous. He was a member of the Φ. B. K., the O. K., the Philological and Natural History Societies, and business editor of the Advocate. His eminence in scholarship, notwithstanding the multiplicity of his interests, was a matter of common surprise; but his singularly practical, intellectual grasp, and a certain orderliness and lucidity of mind, combined with a great power of concentration, was the secret of his success. In his Sophomore year, he took second-year honors in Classics, and at graduation was assigned a dissertation, standing twenty-sixth in a class of two hundred and one.

In the Autumn of 1883, he accepted a position as teacher in Pennell's Latin and English School, Buffalo, N. Y., intending to return later to Cambridge and pursue the study of law. He resided with our classmate,

C. H. Kip, and his life while there was a remarkably happy one, nothing apparently foreshadowing the mournful calamity with which it was soon to close. The sad particulars of his death, which took place May 26, 1884, were made known to the Class in a card published by the Secretary, and require no further comment here.

Such, in brief, was the life of George Emerson Lowell—a life rich in promise of human usefulness, and capable of possibilities which had been only partially disclosed. And although its end was grievous and untimely, yet, indeed, was it a life, not after all without its measure of achievement. For to leave behind a spotless example of integrity and purity, an indelible record of kindly words and kindly deeds, and an enduring legacy of gracious, tender memories,—truly, this has not been always granted to those of riper wisdom and maturer years.

ARTHUR LYMAN.

"In the Autumn of 1883, I returned to Cambridge, with the intention of studying for the degree of A.M. I drifted, however, into the Law School, about Christmas time, and am now in my third year's work there. I have been a member of the Ames-Gray Law Club during the whole time I have been in the Law School. I shall not try for any degree. I have spent every Summer since graduation in Europe. I belong to the Puritan Club, Boston."

JOSÉ ANTONIO MACHADO.

"During the Summer and early Fall of 1883, I was engaged at Beverly, Mass., in tutoring a young boy in the common English branches. Soon after the close of this engagement, I was asked to take, as a pupil in English, Mr. Yu Kil Chun, a young Corean of rank, who remained here to study, after the departure of the Corean embassy. The task of teaching him proved a very interesting experience, as Mr. Yu knew very few English words, and I knew absolutely nothing of his language. During this time, I had also some pupils in Spanish, and lived at home, in Salem. On January 1, 1884, I gave up my pupils, and went to work in the repair department of the Naumkeag Steam Cotton Co.'s mills, in Salem. I remained there a year and a half, and gained some little knowledge of machinery and the general method of running a large manufacturing concern. Since July 1, 1885, I have been in the employ of the firm of Reed & Barton, Taunton, Mass. I am engaged, at present, in getting acquainted with the manufacture of their goods and their trade in general, that I may be useful later in the foreign branch of their business."

EDWIN GUTHRIE McINNES.

1. "Since leaving college, I attended the Harvard Law School, till June, 1885, when I left Cambridge and took up my residence in Malden, studying meanwhile in the office of Chas. S. Lincoln and Hon. S. N. Aldrich, Boston. Was admitted to the Suffolk Bar, January 26, 1886; have opened a morning and evening office at Malden, and swung out my shingle in Boston, 47 Rogers building.

2. "I am not married.

3. "I have taken no journeys.

4. "I received the degree of A.M. for my second year's work in the Law School.

5. "No authorship or public addresses."

RICHARD CRANE McKAY.

"I have been in the wholesale leather business with my father, in Boston, since graduation, except some seven months which I spent in Arizona and which were destitute of results, beyond experience."

DAVID IVES MACKIE.

"Have resided in New York most of the time since leaving college; studied law, and was admitted to the Bar in this city in January last. Am at present in the office of Stanley, Clarke & Smith, 160 Broadway. Am a member of the New York Harvard Club."

ARTHUR RICHMOND MARSH.

"After graduation, I returned to my native place, Newport, R. I., where I spent a year in teaching, but occupying my leisure in preparing and delivering, in Boston, a series of translations from the Greek Dramatists. In the Spring of 1884, I received an appointment as lecturer in Fine Arts at Harvard; and in September I moved from Newport to Dedham, Mass., where I taught some boys, and whence I came to Cambridge for my duties as lecturer. In this Winter, also, I gave in Boston some readings from Sophocles and Euripides. In the Spring of 1885, I made an arrangement with Mr. Edgar H. Nichols, '78, and Mr. George H. Browne, '78, to teach in their fitting-school in Cambridge, and I am at present engaged there.

"On March 20, 1886, I was married, at Newport, R. I., to Miss Marie Bigelow of Newport, daughter of the late John W. Bigelow of New York, and Anna Barton Bigelow.

"I have served as editor of the American Journal of Archaeology, and from time to time have written articles and book reviews for that periodical."

SOLLACE MITCHELL.

"I obtained the degree of M.D., at the Bellevue Hospital Medical College, New York City, March 13, 1885, and the following month entered the Hospital, where I am now House Surgeon. My time of service expires October 1, 1886, at which time I shall probably open an office in this city."

REUBEN BURNHAM MOFFAT.

"In the fall of 1883, I entered Columbia Law School, and graduated in May, 1885, receiving the degree of LL.B. In the same month I was admitted to the Bar of the State of New York, and have, since my admission, been in the office of Jas. K. Hill, Wing & Shoudy, in New York City, at present holding there the position of managing clerk.

"In the fall of 1884, I became interested in the Presidential canvass, and gave my heartiest efforts to aid in the election of Mr. Cleveland. I was chosen chairman of the First Ward Branch of Independent Republicans, in Brooklyn (my home), and for the last two weeks of the campaign, gave up all else in the interests of the contest. After the triumph of our cause the Republican Ward Association, of which I was a member, attempted to discipline me, in common with a few others who had taken a prominent part in the campaign. The attempt at expulsion, however, failed, and I am still in the ranks of the Republican party.

"In the fall of 1885, municipal elections were held in Brooklyn, and I again came into the political field, to favor as I could a non-partisan administration of city affairs. I was a member of the Council (the governing body) of the Citizens' League, and during the campaign took an interested and active part, on the stump as well as at headquarters. I am still a member of the Council, and am chairman of the First Ward Branch of the League. I am also interested in the Civil Service Reform Association of our city, but have held no positions therein, except on committees; and I am a member of the Revenue Reform Club of Brooklyn.

"The Young Republican Club completes the list of the political organizations with which I am connected; while the only social clubs to which I at present belong are the 'Twilight Club' of New York, an association of business and professional men, meeting fortnightly at informal dinners; the 'Hamilton Club' of Brooklyn, and the 'Alcyone Rowing Club.'

"One office of 'profit, honor, or trust' I hold (as asked for by our Secretary), viz.: that of Notary Public; but this has been one of decidedly more trust than profit or honor."

JOHN FARWELL MOORS.

"I stayed at Harvard for two years after graduating. At the end of the first year, I took the degree of A. M., and the second year I may some time make use of toward the degree of Ph.D. At the end of the second year I made a trip to Europe. I was away some four months, spending my time principally in London and in Germany,—that in London, at work in the British Museum; that in Germany, pretty evenly divided between riding a tricycle, and waiting for the tricycle to arrive to ride on. I was particularly struck by the facilities offered to strangers in the library of the British Museum; by the slight changes in production which would attend a withdrawal by war of all the male population from the rural districts of Germany; and by the caution to be observed in making use of simple 'freight' upon the Continent."

GEORGE BURNAP MORISON.

"On leaving college, I went to Europe for the Summer, with Arthur Lyman of our Class, and spent the time in travelling about. Upon my return, I came to Boston, in November, 1883, to settle in business, taking a position in the selling office of the Hadley Co., Cotton Spinners, and am still at work in that office."

GEORGE PATRICK MORRIS.

"Since graduation I have been engaged in the retail drug business in Boston, with my father, and have spent much of my spare time studying medicine with my brother, as I intend to enter the Harvard Medical School in the fall of 1886 or 1887."

CHARLES FRANCIS MORSE.

"After graduation, I devoted myself to private pupils until March, 1884, when I accepted the position of instructor in Natural Science at Chauncy Hall School, Boston. I remained in this position till July, 1885, when I resigned more than half of my work there, in order to get time to attend the lectures in the Harvard Medical School, which I entered in October, 1885, continuing with a part of my work at Chauncy Hall. I have made no change in my work since then, and it is now my intention to go through the Medical School, and to practise medicine."

FRANKLIN WOODRUFF MOULTON.

"After graduation, I entered the Columbia Law School, and studied there two years, receiving my degree in May, 1885.

"In the Summer of 1885, I went West, with Waldo Fuller, '83, and had two delightful months of ranch life, passing July in southwestern Colorado, near Durango, and August in Wyoming, with H. A. Andrews, '83. The cowboys, though their language is sometimes more vigorous than elegant, are a genial, generous set of fellows, far more agreeable than I expected to find them.

"On my return from the West, I entered the law office of Root & Strong, William Street, New York City, where I now am."

Is a member of the Harvard and Athletic Clubs, of New York City.

GISABURO NAKAWARA.

July 4, 1883, sailed for Europe with Kikkawa, of our Class, R. D. Winthrop, '83, being also a passenger on the same steamer.

He visited all the principal cities and places of interest in England and Scotland; and in August arrived in Holland, where he witnessed the International Exhibition at Amsterdam, then just opened. Thence up the Rhine, and through the cities and mountain scenery of Switzerland to Geneva and Paris; and from there to Milan, Venice, Florence, and Rome. November 5, 1883, he sailed from Brindisi, via Suez, for Yokohama, arriving December 22. Ten days after his arrival he fell sick, owing to the change of climate, and for about fifty days was confined in the Tokio hospital, when he was able to return to his home in the country. In January, 1886, he was introduced to the American Trading Co., of Yokohama, the head office of which being at 234 Broadway, New York City, by T. L. Park, '83, who was then on business for the company in Japan.

CHARLES CORBETT NICHOLS.

"In the fall of 1883, I entered the Harvard Law School. In April, 1884, I was elected Harvard's representative on the American International Lacrosse Team, playing with them in New Haven, Baltimore, Philadelphia, and New York. In May we sailed for England, and I visited the principal cities of that country and of Scotland, and Belfast, Ireland. We met the Lacrosse teams of England and Ireland, winning nine out of eleven matches, with one draw, taking advantage, meanwhile, of frequent opportunities to visit places of interest; and sailed for home June 28, 1884, having enjoyed our journey exceedingly. I re-entered the Law School in the following October, and accompanied the 'Varsity Lacrosse team on its very successful tour to Baltimore and New York, in the Spring of 1885. Last July I entered the law office of Hon. Chas. Robinson, Jr., Boston, where I have been up to date. I have been for several years a member of the Everett (Mass.) Town Improvement Association, and, previous to my trip abroad, was the treasurer and collector of the Universalist Society; and I am now one of the town auditors."

CHARLES PROSSER NICHOLS.

"In the fall after leaving college, I entered the employ of Sam'l Cabot, Jr., Manufacturing Chemist, 70 Kilby Street, Boston; and with the exception of two or three trips to the South and West, I have been in Boston ever since."

FREDERICK NICHOLS.

In October, 1883, I entered the Harvard Law School, but was unable to complete the work of the year. I made a second attempt, with the same result, in the following Autumn, and then yielded to the inevitable, since which time I have been engaged in a struggle for health—thus far, without encouragement.

My literary efforts have been mainly contributions to various magazines, and do not merit more particular notice. I have been a member of the Puritan Club, of Boston, since its organization.

GEORGE HENRY NICHOLS.

In September, 1883, he began teaching in his cousin's (Mr. William Nichols's) Classical School for Boys, then on Essex Street, now at 36 Temple Place, Boston, where he has since remained.

WILLIAM EDGAR NIES.

"I have studied Theology, since leaving college, at the Episcopal Theological School in Cambridge. I graduate this coming June, when I shall take the position of assistant minister at St. George's Church, New York City.

"I have written the music of about eighty carols and hymns, and of fifteen songs—one of the latter, 'Free Lances' (words by A. M. Lord, '83), having been translated and published in Vienna. Eight carols have been published—three by Ditson & Co., of which one, 'Hark the Glad Chorus,' has reached five editions, and another, 'Ring out Ye Bells,' three editions; the other five carols have been published by H. L. Hastings. Trinity Church, Boston, has used my carols, and I have the oversight of the music at St. George's, New York."

SAMUEL NORRIS.

"In September, 1883, I entered the Harvard Law School, where I remained for two years. In the Summer of 1884, I entered the office of Sam'l P. Colt, Attorney-General of Rhode Island, at Bristol, where I read law during the vacation, and for three months of the following Academic year. I was admitted to the Rhode Island Bar in July, 1885; and in the following September opened an office in Bristol, becoming associated also with Mr. Colt in civil practice at Providence.

"While at the Law School, was a member of the Thayer Club. I am now a member of the Calumet Club, of Providence; of the R. I. Historical Society; and of the Bristol School Committee.

"July 4, 1883, I delivered the oration in Bristol, at the usual celebration of the day; and November 10, 1883, I delivered an address on the Reformation, the occasion being the celebration of the quatre-centennial anniversary of the birth of Martin Luther."

JAMES ATKINS NOYES.

"On the Tuesday following Commencement, I sailed for Europe on a four months' trip. I went over the beaten track, the general outline of my journey being as follows:—from Chester through the English lakes to Glasgow, through the Scotch lakes to Edinburgh, then to Cambridge, Oxford, and London. I landed on the Continent at Ostend, and visited the principal cities of Belgium and Holland. Then up the Rhine, branching off at Mayence to Heidelberg. From Geneva to Chamounix and Zermatt, over the Simplon Pass to the Italian lakes and the larger cities of northern Italy. From Turin through the Mont Cenis Tunnel to Paris, London, Liverpool, and home.

"Not being in good health, I made a short trip South in January and February, 1886, to Old Point Comfort, Va., and Washington.

"On January 19, 1884, I was elected a member of the Harvard Club of New York City, and on April 10, 1885, of the Alcyoné Boat Club of Brooklyn, organized May 11, 1859.

"Since June, 1884, I have been connected with the firm of John L. Bremer & Co., Boston and New York, in the New York house, 62 Leonard Street. They are the agents for the Amoskeag-Stark-Amory-Langdon & Naumkeag Cotton Mills."

ROBERT EMMET O'CALLAGHAN.

"In the Autumn of 1883, I entered the law office of Porter & Gove, Salem, Mass., where I remained about a year. Then entered the Harvard Law School, where I was elected a member of the 'Pow-wow' Law Club. Part of last Summer was spent in the office of John W. Porter, Esq., Salem. Was admitted to the Bar of Massachusetts, October 15, 1885.

"At present am in the Law School."

GEORGE HYDE PAGE.

Went West after graduation, to a ranch in the Indian Territory, where he remained until the following Spring. Spent the succeeding year in Denver, Col. In the Summer of 1885, received an injury from a fall while driving cattle, in western Colorado, and has since been recuperating at his home in Boston.

WILLIAM HUSSEY PAGE.

"Immediately after graduation, I came to New York City, where I have since been and purpose to remain.

"First Year:—Taught school, tutored, prospected for a business opening, and spent leisure time on Law and Spanish.

"Second Year:—Gave up the idea of business, decided to make law a profession, took the course of both years at the Columbia Law School, continued to teach mornings, and filled appointment as evening instructor of Spanish at the Y. M. C. A.

"Third Year:—Withdrew from pedagogy except as to Spanish, spent mornings in the law office of Bangs & Stetson, repeated the course of the Law School, graduated, and was admitted to the New York Bar.

"I may add that my vacations are taken in July, and are devoted to farming, in Rochester, N. H.; that I am a member of the New York Harvard Club; and can chronicle, to the credit of '83, that when it meets her representatives never fail to hold their own."

TRENOR LUTHER PARK.

After graduation, entered the Columbia Law School, but discontinued his studies after a few months. In the Winter of 1884–85, he became a member of the American Trading Company—a concern newly organized for the importation of Chinese and Japanese goods; and at present is in Japan on business for the company, intending to be absent for two years there and in China.

Is a member of the Lotus Club, of New York City.

JOHN LETCHER PATTERSON.

"Since leaving college, my home has been in Lexington, Ky.; but for the past two years, I have spent five days of every week during the school term in Woodlake, Ky., where I have been Principal of a select school for boys. I have been pursuing, the past year, a course of philosophy and political economy, and shall take the degree of A.M. at the State College this June.

"I am a member of the Lexington German Club, and of the Louisville Harvard Club, recently organized. For a year or more I have been a contributor to the poetical department of the Louisville Courier-Journal, furnishing, among others, the poems 'Wintertide,' 'Love's Attributes,' 'The Valse,' etc."

WALTER EVERARD PAUL.

"I have lived in Boston and attended the Harvard Medical School since graduation. I am a member of the Boylston Medical Society. Questions 2, 3, 5 and 6 do not touch my life."

LOUIS ROBERT EUGÈNE PAULIN.

"A few days after graduation, I sailed for England, where I remained until the following January. I spent eight weeks in Oxford, where I met E. P. Warren, '83, who was matriculated at New College. I came straight from England to Colorado Springs, where I was first admitted to the Unholy Order of Cowboys. I have since continued in the error of my ways, and have become a confirmed 'cowpuncher.' I have spent the Winter of 1885-6 in the East, and returned to Colorado in the early Spring. It is my intention to be in New Mexico south of the San Juan, 'greasers' permitting, and I shall make Durango, Col., my headquarters. While in Colorado Springs, was a member of the El Paso Club, and now hold membership in the Durango Club.

"Have written a number of rhymed, unrhymed and unreasonable articles for various papers, most of which are still in my possession; and have had occasional things in the Lampoon, Life, the Nation, the Critic and the Philadelphia Press."

SUMNER BASS PEARMAIN.

"After graduation I went West, with the intention of buying or starting a ranch. I went directly to Arizona, and from there made trips to Southern California, Mexico and Southern Utah. While West, I had a business offer made me in the East, which I accepted, and coming to Boston, entered into partnership with L. L. Brooks, under the firm name of Pearmain & Brooks, for the purpose of doing a general Stock Brokerage business. I bought a seat in the Boston Stock Exchange, and opened an office at 51 State Street.

"June 3, 1886, was married to Alice W. Upton (Wellesley, '83), of East Jaffrey, N. H."

JOHN DOWNER PENNOCK.

"In the fall of 1883, I returned to college; occupied Professor Jackson's room as Proctor, during his absence of a year in Europe, and continued the study of chemistry, in which I had become much interested during my college course. In November, 1884, I accepted the position of chemist of the Solvay Process Co., of Syracuse, N. Y., manufacturers of soda ash and other chemicals. I am still in the employ of this company."

CHARLES PAGE PERIN.

"My residence, since leaving Cambridge, has been varied. Was first in West Stockbridge, Mass., as Superintendent of a small iron mine; then in Cambridge, at the Agassiz Museum (not as a curiosity, but as assistant to Professor Shaler); next at the Edgar Thomson Furnace, in Braddock, Pa., as member of machine shop, assistant chemist and foreman; next in Allegheny, Pa.; then a member of a private geological survey of Bath and part of Menifee and Rowan Counties, Ky., with special reference to iron ores; next given charge of a blast furnace, June 15, 1885, at Spring Hill, West Va., where I remained until last January, when I was made Manager of the Norton Furnace, Ashland Ky.

"Have written nothing, except an article on the wretched condition of the schools in East Kentucky."

CHARLES BRUEN PERKINS.

After spending one year at the Institute of Technology, in Boston, and another in the office of the late H. H. Richardson, the architect, in Brookline, Mass., he went to Paris, where he is at present studying at the Ecole des Beaux Arts.

OSCAR EDWARD PERRY.

"I left college February 21, 1882, and taught in the high school at Westfield, Mass., until November 27, 1882, when I entered the employ of the Holyoke Machine Co., at Holyoke, Mass., as paymaster, and was serving in that capacity when I received my degree, in 1883.

"I am still connected with the Holyoke Machine Co., at their works in Worcester, Mass. March 16, 1882, I was married to Virginia Adelaide Bowen, daughter of Reuben and Sarah Ann Bowen, of Rehoboth, Mass.

"My first son, Edward Bowen, was born March 12, 1883; my second son, Oscar Seagrave, was born November 9, 1884, and died September 5, 1885."

ALONZO WILDER POLLARD.

"On the Saturday after Commencement, I sailed from New York for England, with the intention of travelling without any definite plan for as long a time as I should find enjoyable. It is sufficient to say that I made the usual tour of Europe, without going to any unknown place, and in the Autumn I was glad to return to Boston, which has since been my home. During the following year I was in business with my father, and in December 1884, went into the office of Messrs. Henry W. Peabody & Co., Shipping Merchants, of Boston, having made up my mind that I preferred that business, to any other business or profession."

GEORGE JONATHAN PORTER.

Immediately after graduation, entered the office of Peabody & Stearns, Architects, of Boston, and remained there about a year, till his health gave out. From September, 1884, till April, 1885, he was employed as mechanical draughtsman at the factory of the Wainwright Manufacturing Co., Boston. Since then he has been devoting his time largely to the study of architecture.

JAMES FAULKNER PRESTON.

"After completing my college course, I passed the Summer abroad, travelling through Ireland, England, Belgium, Switzerland and France. Soon after my return, in the fall of 1883, I took advantage of an opportunity to enter the woollen mill of Messrs. Stevens & Co., in Haverhill, Mass. There I studied the detail of woollen manufacture for about a year, when I was offered the position of Treasurer of the Talbot Dyewood & Chemical Co., a corporation which was being formed by some of my friends, to buy out the firm of Messrs. C. P. Talbot & Co., of Lowell, Mass., and to continue their business, which was the manufacture and sale of chemicals and dyewoods. I have filled this position ever since, passing most of my time in Lowell."

HERBERT PUTNAM.

"The first year after graduation I spent in New York, attending the lectures at the Columbia Law School. In the fall of 1884, I was offered the librarianship of the Minneapolis Atheneum which I accepted and have held ever since.

"I have not indulged an appetite for exploration 'in this or foreign countries'; what journeys have fallen to my lot have been between Minneapolis and New England, with some deviations to other cities whose libraries deserved investigation.

"In the matter of degrees, I have risen no further than A.B.; like all good Americans, I trust to get as far as C. one of these days.

"No books, pamphlets, articles, addresses, or other literary progeny rest upon my conscience."

OSGOOD PUTNAM.

"After graduation, I went at once to my home in San Francisco where I began tutoring. The two years after that I also tutored and taught in school; my private teaching resulting in entering several pupils at Harvard, Yale and Smith College; my school work being entirely instruction in mathematics, which gave me time for outside study on subjects not connected with teaching. The second year I taught in the Berkeley Gymnasium, Berkeley, Cal.; and this third year I am teaching at Dr. Nowell's School, 54 West 57th Street, New York City.

"In San Francisco, the connecting link with old Harvard was the Harvard Club, which ranks next in size to that of New York.

"I have now taken up my residence permanently in the East, to continue study and teaching."

CHARLES RANLET.

"On September 1, 1883, I entered the employ of the Holyoke Machine Co., at Holyoke, Mass. September 1, 1885, was transferred to Worcester, Mass., in the shop of same company, where I have been since."

FLETCHER RANNEY.

"Have been studying law. Admitted to Suffolk Bar, on January 26, 1886. (Shall probably soon enter law firm of Ranney & Clark)."

Has contributed occasional poems to "Every Other Saturday," a Boston publication; and has been appointed commencement speaker for this year, by the faculty of the Boston University Law School.

FREDERIC GRAY REED.

"On September 1, following graduation, I entered the employ of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Co., at Manchester, N. H., with the purpose of making a thorough study of the manufacture of textiles. My first year was spent in the machine shops of the company, which is an important part of the training in the preparation for any mechanical work. Another year was spent in the carding and spinning rooms, as a section-hand; and the present year I have been a 'loom-fixer,' or section-hand, in the weave-room.

"Have thus had good opportunities for studying the 'labor question' practically. Shall remain for the present, with the Amoskeag Company, and complete my course of 'professional study' in a cotton-mill."

DANIEL MERCHANT RICHARDSON.

Has resided, since graduation, in Lowell, Mass., and has been engaged in the study of law in the office of D. S. and D. F. Richardson of that city. Has taken no journeys except local ones. Is a member of the Lowell Yorick club [social] and the Vesper Boat Club.

PHILIP RICHMOND.

"Since leaving college, I have been learning the business of manufacturing calicoes, at the Richmond Manufacturing Co.'s Print Works, Providence, R. I. I am now employed as purchasing agent for that firm.

"Have not as yet seen any suitable opening for matrimony. Am a member of the Calumet Club of Providence. With the exception of a trip to the Maine woods every fall, I have hardly been outside of Providence since I left Harvard."

CHARLES ENOCH ROBINSON.

Has continued to reside, since graduation, at his home in Somerville, Mass., and has been engaged in the occupation of wood and steel engraving in Boston. Has not replied to circulars.

CHARLES RANDALL ROCKWELL.

After a Summer spent in wandering, in November, 1883, he went to Kansas City, Mo., and entered the Merchants National Bank, where he has since remained, making occasional visits to his home in Tarrytown, N. Y.

EDMUND SWETT ROUSMANIERE.

"Since leaving college, I have resided and studied at the Episcopal Theological School in Cambridge; and June 16, 1886, I expect to be admitted a deacon in the Protestant Episcopal Church.

"A portion of the Summer of 1885, I spent in England.

"I have written nothing for publication, and have made no addresses except of a religious character. March 8, 1886, I represented the Cambridge Seminary, in an inter-seminary examination in reading, held in Philadelphia, and was fortunate enough to secure the prize."

WILLIAM ALVAH RUBLEE.

After a year spent in business, in Oregon, he returned to Cambridge and entered the Law School, where he remained during 1884-5. The past year has been in Milwaukee, Wis., his home, employed in newspaper work on the Sentinel. Has not replied to circulars.

FLETCHER FERRIS RYER.

"After leaving college, I went to New York, and there attended the Columbia Law School for a little more than a year, when I was obliged to come home to California. Since then, I have been busy in attending to some ranches belonging to my father. My spare time is devoted to the study of law, and I hope in a few months to be admitted to practice."

SABIN POND SANGER.

"On August 1, 1883, I began business in the employ of Blake Brothers & Co., Bankers, 28 State Street, Boston, and I am still with them."

EVERETT WYMAN SAWYER.

"In August, 1883, I accepted the position of second master in the Horton Collegiate Academy at Wolfville, Nova Scotia. During the first year there, and also for a portion of the present year, I filled the office of instructor in History at Acadia College, the University of the Baptists of the Maritime Provinces. Late in the session of 1883-4, I was nominated by the Faculty of Harvard to the Harris Fellowship, but owing to the oversight of the Registrar, the nomination was never sent to the Corporation and so no action was taken. Forced to make a decision for the coming year, I was compelled to remain in my position as instructor of the youth of Nova Scotia.

"August 5, 1884, I was married to Emma Bernal Crawley, youngest daughter of the Rev. Edmund Albern Crawley, D.D.; and August 24, 1885, was born a son, to whom was given the name Bernal Wyman.

"For a time after leaving Harvard, I fully intended to make teaching my life work; but finding this becoming increasingly irksome and excessively trying to my nervous system, I have gone back to my first love, the law, with a view to going up for admission to the Bar at no very distant date."

FRED LELAND SAWYER.

Entered the Harvard Law School in the Winter of 1883-4, and completed the work of that year and part of the next. Since then has been teaching, the greater part of the time at Dartmouth, Mass. He rowed No. 4 in the University boat, in the races with Yale and Columbia, at New London, in June, 1884. Has not replied to circulars.

HENRY FRANCIS SEARS.

"On leaving college, I entered the Harvard Law School, and studied law for one year. In the Autumn of 1884, I entered the Harvard Medical School, where I have been ever since. With the exception of two shooting-trips to the Rocky Mountains, in the Summers of 1883-4, I have been away from Boston very little. I have not married, nor held any 'offices of profit, honor or trust.' "

RICHARD DUDLEY SEARS.

"Since graduation, I have made Boston my residence, or rather my headquarters, as I have spent most of my time in travelling.

"In the Winter of 1884, I crossed the ocean in the schooner-yacht 'Gitana' (owned by W. F. Weld, '76), and after visiting Bermuda and Madeira, we cruised about the Mediterranean, stopping at ports in Spain, along the north coast of Africa, Malta, Sicily, Italy and France. The greater part of the Summer of 1884, I spent in England. In 1885, I went off again, in the 'Gitana,' to the Bahamas, West Indies and Gulf of Mexico, and spent the Summer at home. The past Winter I have been at Cannes, in the south of France. I am a member of the Somerset and Puritan Clubs of Boston."

Our classmate still holds the Amateur Lawn Tennis Championship of America, winning the cup for the fifth consecutive time in the Summer of 1885. He has edited for American readers, at the request of the English publishers, a book by Lieut. S. C. F. Peile, entitled "Lawn Tennis as a Game of Skill."

ARCHIBALD LOWERY SESSIONS.

Went at once to New York City, after graduation, and began his preparation for admission to the Bar. Was admitted in May, 1884, and since then has been practising in New York, where he intends to establish himself. Has not replied to circulars.

RAYMER SHARP.

"After leaving college, I taught school for a period of six months, since which time I have been employed as a clerk in the law firm of George T. & William H. Sharp, of San Francisco."

JOSEPH HENRY SHEFFIELD.

"In the fall of 1883, I went to Lyme, Conn., to take charge of a small academy there. I staid one year, and at the end found myself richer in experience than money. In the fall of 1884, I changed the academy at Lyme, for the High School at Manistee, Mich. I have been here two years, and shall probably remain for some time to come."

JOHN DICKINSON SHERWOOD.

"I left my home in New York City on December 13, 1883, with the determination to begin my business struggle in the Northwest, if I found a favorable location. Having visited most of the Northern Pacific towns, I selected Spokane Falls, Washington Ty., where I have lived ever since. I was attracted to this place because of its advantageous position, being the centre of a large and undeveloped agricultural and mining country, and also because of its magnificent water power, which will prove, eventually, an important factor in developing the natural resources of the adjacent country.

"I am engaged in the general merchandise business; also hold real estate and mining interests—thus far with fair success. Was fortunate enough to meet F. L. Clark, '83, and Fred Chamberlin, '80, who have taken up their abode here.

"Am a member of the Harvard Club of New York and of San Francisco."

CHARLES WORCESTER SMITH.

"After Commencement, I spent a month at my home in Worcester, Mass., and then passed August and September in the backwoods of Maine, camping out close to the Canada line, with G. M. Davis, '83.

"October 1, I went to work in one of our cotton mills, at Smithville, Mass., and spent the following year there learning the business, at the end of which time I was attacked by rheumatic fever. By the time I had recovered, the mills were shut down in consequence of the business depression, and since then I have had no regular employment."

In the Winter of 1885, he went South for his health, spent two months in Louisville, and then made a journey to the West, passing through Chicago, St. Louis, and Kansas City to Nebraska, Kansas, and Indian Territory, where he roamed about for two months longer among the ranches of those States. He next spent four weeks at the New Orleans Exposition, then just opened, whence he returned to Worcester, via Louisville. During the past year he has made one trip South and one West; and at the time of writing is in Louisville.

JAMES BEEBE SMITH.

"My chosen occupation—that of a newspaper man—found me, the week after Commencement, at the foot of the ladder on the local force of the Springfield Republican. I have ever since been connected with this department of the paper, holding successively the position of reporter and city editor until Thanksgiving, 1884, when I was given the local editor's desk, and have since been in charge of the department. Here I am likely to remain for some time, as my home is in Springfield.

The date of my marriage is set for June 9, and the bride's name is Miss Minnie A. Sturtevant, oldest daughter of Warner F. and Julia E. (Bemis) Sturtevant, of this city."

ORMOND GERALD SMITH.

"I became a member of the firm of Street & Smith, Publishers, New York City, July 2, 1883, and still continue in this connection. I lived in New York until October 1, 1885, when I removed to Port Chester, N. Y., where I have since resided."

WALTER EDWARD CLIFTON SMITH.

"Since graduation, I have been engaged in study at the Cambridge Episcopal Theological School. I expect to finish my school preparation and receive ordination to the Episcopal ministry in June, 1886. I expect also to enter upon the work of my profession this coming Summer, and to be located in Boston."

HENRY LLOYD SMYTH.

Spent the year following graduation, and half the year 1884–85, at Cambridge, engaged in private tutoring and studying for the degree of Civil Engineer, which he received last Commencement. In the Spring of 1885, he was appointed to a position on the U. S. Geological Survey, and was employed during the following Summer and Autumn, in the work of triangulation, in the eastern part of Massachusetts. The past Winter he has been in the service of the department, at Washington, D. C. Has not replied to circulars.

WALTER SOREN.

"Since leaving college, I have resided at my home in Dorchester, Mass., and have attended the Boston Law School."

FRANK MILLER SPARROW.

"After graduation, I joined the Harvard Law School, and studied law about four months. Being very much interested in several electrical inventions, I discontinued the law, and since then have given the principal part of my attention to the development of the inventions. As soon as they are satisfactorily disposed of, I shall probably resume the study of law."

HORACE ELMER SPRAGUE.

"On leaving college, I engaged with a large furniture firm in Worcester, Mass., hoping to learn the business; but toward the end of the year I found my health giving way from confinement, and abandoned the idea. Since then I have been teaching. In the Autumn of 1884, I took the position of principal of Lyme Academy, Conn., a post filled by Sheffield, '83, the year before. I was the only teacher in the institution, and though the number of scholars was small I found my office a rather hard one, because of the variety of subjects I was expected to teach, viz: all grades of the common school branches as well as all requirements for entrance to any college. Towards the close of the school year, the academy was deprived of its chief support by the death of Mr. D. Chadwick, late U. S. Dist. Att'y of Conn., and the school consequently was discontinued. At the beginning of the next school year, having no satisfactory position engaged, for a little while I canvassed for Blaine's book, but with no marked success. Then hearing of a good opening for a school in Orange Park, Fla., I came here last October, and have been conducting since that time a private school, incorporated as Lenox Academy, under the control of trustees from Milwaukee, Jacksonville, and Orange Park. Owing to the failure of the orange crop and the straightened circumstances resulting therefrom, the number of pupils has been small, and I am now looking for a more favorable opening."

NATHAN CUSHMAN STEVENS.

"The first and last of your inquiries are the only ones to which I can give replies more eloquent than silence.

"Since leaving college, I have given my attention wholly to electric lighting. I was first employed by the Edison Illuminating Co., of Fall River, Mass., and then by the Edison Electric Light Co., of New York City. But for the last year and a half I have been in the employ of the Thomson-Houston Electric Co., of Boston; and am now stationed in New York to attend to their expert work in the vicinity, and to act as manager of their lighting station, at 37 West 14th Street."

ARTHUR KINGSBURY STONE.

"I have spent the three years since graduation studying at the Harvard Medical School. I have been a member of the Boylston Medical Society."

WILLIAM DUNNING SULLIVAN.

"On leaving college, I went to work immediately on the reportorial staff of the Boston Daily Globe, and continued to do general reporting until November, 1884, when I received an editorial position, which I have since filled. At the formation of the Boston Press Club, in April, 1886, I was elected a member of the executive committee, and still hold that office. I have not been out of New England, except occasionally, and have travelled none save on business."

EDWARD WILLIAMS STEPHENS TINGLE.

After graduation, he went to Glendive, Montana, where he was his father's partner in the real estate and cattle business, and also held for several months the position of deputy and acting postmaster of that town. Then coming East to St. Paul, Minn., in September, 1884, he secured a position on the Evening Day as Northwestern Exchange editor, but remained only two weeks, resigning to accept a post on the Erie (Pa.) Dispatch. Here he was successively telegraph, night, and managing editor, but withdrew November 1, 1885, and obtained the office of assistant editorial writer and exchange editor on the St. Paul Globe, which position he now holds.

Is not married "but has hopes." Is a member of the St. George and Globe Toboggan Clubs of St. Paul.

ALFRED TONKS.

Immediately after graduation, he was appointed general weigher for the Fitchburg Railroad, in Boston, but quitted this position after a few months, and then taught school at Saybrook, Conn. He was for a time employed in charge of the specimens at the Agassiz Museum, in Cambridge, and then went West. When last heard of, he was in Denver, Col., a member of the Harvard Club. Has not replied to circulars.

EDWARD PERRY WARREN.

Spent the Summer of 1883 abroad, and in the following Autumn entered New College, Oxford, where he has since remained, taking a "First" in classics at the "Moderations," in 1885. The Summer of 1884 he passed at home, and that of the next year in Germany, in order to perfect his knowledge of the language for classical purposes. At the time of writing he is in Greece, with W. A. Gardner, '84, after carefully "doing" Rome and classic Italy.

In a letter from Naples, he says:—"Yesterday we went to the Lucrine Lake, and Baiae, and Avernus, and were carried down black tunnels and passages, through three feet of water, to subterranean chambers supposed to be the Sybil's grotto. Most melancholy and romantic of all, an extortionate Tityrus took us over a sort of ruinous hill which once was Cumae, and we saw Pachyta, Inarime, and Caieta. We came home by Vergil's tomb, hanging high over the dark entrance to the grotto of Posilippo, which mediaeval superstition attributed to his incantations."

The Secretary had hoped that our classmate could find time to furnish for the Report a sketch of Oxford life, in some detail, but he has been evidently unable to confer this favor, much to our common loss.

WILLIAM ROSS WARREN.

Since graduation has resided in New York, engaged in business with the Warren Chemical and Manufacturing Company, of that city.

Has become a non-resident member of the University Club of Cincinnati, O.

WILLIAM WADSWORTH WENTWORTH.

"Since leaving college, I have been engaged in teaching Mathematics, Latin, Physiology, and Chemistry, with a few other branches as occasion required, in the Englewood High School, Cook County, Illinois.

"During the last two years I have been a member of the Illinois State Microscopical Society."

ALFRED JEROME WESTON.

Spent the Winter following graduation in Demarara and the West Indies. Returning to New York, went into business with Caldwell, Weston Bros., & Watts, Wholesale Coal Miners and Shippers, in which firm he was a partner. He then became a member of the firm of Weston Bros. & Agnew, successors to the old firm, and doing a general commission business with the West Indies, "exporting all the products of this country, and importing sugar, coffee, pimento, cocoa, etc." May 1, 1886, on the dissolution of this latter partnership, he organized the new firm of Weston & Gray, for carrying on the West India business.

Is a member of the Calumet Club of New York, and of the N. Y. Civil Service Reform Association.

DANIEL APPLETON WHITE.

"After leaving college, I entered the Harvard Law School and pursued the studies of the second year course, having taken those of the first year while in college. During the Summer of 1884, I visited Dakota with a view to settling there, but returned in September and accepted the position of principal of the Grammar School at Englewood, Ill., where I am still teaching.

"I am a member of a Lodge and an Encampment of the I. O. O. F., and of two local literary societies."

JOHN HENRY WIGMORE.

"After graduation, I went directly to my home in San Francisco. Until December, 1883, I worked at certain branches not satisfactorily studied in college. In January, 1884, I went to work in my father's lumber yard, and continued there until September of that year, in various capacities, as bookkeeper, laborer or stevedore. I then came East again and entered the Harvard Law School, staying in Cambridge during the Summer of 1885, and entering the School again in the fall for the second year course. In 1886–87 I expect to take the third year course, after returning to San Francisco for the Summer. I am at present a candidate for the degree of A. M., in June, 1886."

RICHARD BAKER WILCOX.

Since graduation has been engaged in the study of law. Spent the year 1883–4 at the Harvard Law School, and then went to Kansas City, Mo., where he entered the office of Jewell & Thompson with whom he still remains. Was admitted to the Missouri Bar, March 13, 1886.

WILLIAM HALL WILLIAMS.

"Early in September, 1883, I received an appointment as instructor in Logic and Metaphysics at Griswold College, Davenport, Iowa, where—the chair of Philosophy being then vacant—almost the entire burden of teaching philosophy fell upon me. I resided in Davenport during the nine or ten months of the academic year, returning just in time to attend the Class Day exercises of 1884.

"Declining another appointment at Griswold, I spent the Summer in Massachusetts, and in the fall entered the middle class of the Cambridge Episcopal Theological School, residing during the year in Lawrence Hall. Having completed the school year, I went into partnership with Mr. John F. Nichols, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and founded 'Camp Harvard,' a Summer camp for boys, at Rindge, N. H., on the shore of Lake Monomanock. The camp made a good beginning, and we hope has become a permanent establishment.

"In the fall of 1885, I took lodgings in Melrose, Mass., where I have since lived, going to Cambridge daily to attend the lectures of the Theological School, and to complete my course there. I have also been, as lay-reader, in charge of Emmanuel Church (Episcopal), at Wakefield, Mass., where I expect to be in full charge after my ordination which would regularly take place in June, 1886."

RALPH DENTON WILSON.

Left Cambridge in the Autumn after graduation, and went to the Philippine Islands, where he is employed, at Iloilo, on the plantations of Peele, Hubbell & Co., Sugar Exporters. He expects to be absent several years. Has not replied to circulars.

CHARLES EDGAR LEWIS WINGATE.

Immediately after graduation, he entered the office of the Boston Daily Journal, as a reporter. In the political campaign, he was sent through the State of Massachusetts to report the speeches and other interesting transactions of Gen. B. F. Butler, and in August, 1884, was detailed to spend two weeks in Portsmouth, N. H., and in Newburyport, Mass., to write up the return of the Greely Arctic Expedition. At the opening of the World's Exposition in New Orleans, he was sent to that city in order to write for the Journal a series of letters, descriptive of the great exhibition. After his return, he assisted in dramatic criticism, besides reporting, and in January, 1886, was promoted from the reporting staff and placed in charge of the dramatic and musical department of the paper.

September 9, 1885, he married Miss Mabel Nickerson, daughter of John F. and Susan S. Nickerson, of Boston.

Is a member of the "Newspaper Club," an association composed of journalists of Boston.

GEORGE SCOTT WINSLOW.

"In June, 1883, I sailed for Europe, and spent three months there, most of the time in England and Germany, returning in October. In February, 1884, I became connected with Cheney Bros., Silk Manufacturers, of Boston, and have been with them ever since, my position being a seller of their goods.

"I took much interest in the Presidential Election of 1884, and was among the class known as 'Mugwumps.'"

WINTHROP CHURCH WINSLOW.

Has been, since graduation, in the employ of Geo. M. Winslow & Co., Coal Dealers, 228 Causeway Street, Boston.

ROBERT DUDLEY WINTHROP.

Went abroad immediately after graduation, returning in the Autumn of 1883. Was admitted, on January 1, 1884, to the firm of Robert Winthrop & Co., Bankers, of New York City. Sailed for Europe again in the Winter of 1885, and when last heard from was at Cannes, in the South of France. Is a member of the Knickerbocker and Calumet Clubs of New York City.

JOSEPH MEYER WITMER.

About six weeks after graduation, he started for the Pacific Slope, with a view to establishing himself in business in the West. He returned, however, in the course of several months, to his home in Juda, Wis., where he, in company with his brother, carried on a banking business, under the name of Witmer Bros., until the fall of 1884, when the firm closed its business there for the purpose of moving the same to Los Angeles, Cal. He was then detailed to remain with the Citizens Bank of Monroe, Wis., in order to complete the settlement of the firm's affairs, and remained there until November, 1885, when he left for his future residence, Los Angeles, Cal. He is interested in the Los Angeles Improvement Co., and the Second Street Cable R. R. Co., of that flourishing little city.

ARTHUR HENRY WOODBURY.

"Since graduation I have been teaching in private academies; the first two years at Newbury, Mass., the last year at Greenwich, Conn."

CHARLES POMEROY WORCESTER.

"During the Winter term of 1883–4, I succeeded Dr. Mabery as assistant in the Chemical Laboratory at Harvard, at the same time assisting Professor Cooke in his original work. During the Summer term, I was in charge of the course in Qualitative Analysis. In the Autumn following, I joined the entering class at the Harvard Medical School, whence I expect to graduate next year. My spare time I occupy as assistant analyst to the State Board of Health."

ALPHONSO ADELBERT WYMAN.

"In December, 1883, I entered the law office of Henry W. Paine & W. W. Vaughan, 209 Washington Street, Boston. In July, 1885, I was admitted to the Suffolk Bar, and am now practising law at 131 Devonshire Street, Boston."

TEMPORARY MEMBERS.

[This record is incomplete, very few of those members to whom circulars were sent, having felt interest enough to reply. Copies of the report will be sent, however, to all subscribers to the Class Fund, whether heard from or not, as well as to all those who, although not subscribers, have valued sufficiently their connection with Eighty-three to assist in the preparation of its triennial history. The remainder would seem to have no just claim upon the generosity of the Class.]

WILLIAM HENRY ALLEN.

Entered the banking house of Blake Bros. & Co., State Street, Boston, in January, 1881, and remained there for three years. In January, 1884, entered the banking house of Preston, Kean & Co., Chicago, Ill., where he now is.

Was married October 30, 1883, at Greenfield, Mass., to Margaret Eliot Comstock, of Greenfield, daughter of Wm. Ogilvie and Margaret Eliot Comstock. Has one daughter, Dorothea Allen, born August 5, 1884, at Batavia, Illinois.

HOWARD EYRE ALTEMUS.

"I left college in January, 1882, to assume a position offered by the Fireside Publishing Co., of Philadelphia, with which I am still connected. On January 1, 1886, I became a member of the firm of Henry Altemus, Publisher. Have not travelled, except for business purposes, and then only through Pennsylvania and New York States, and in New England. February 22, 1884, was elected a member of the Union League Club of Philadelphia."

BYRON ELLIS BAKER.*

"Byron Ellis Baker, son of Lucas Baker, was born at Templeton, Mass., September 3, 1860.

"When a child, playful and cheerful in disposition, he was thoughtful and often poetic in his fancies. His early education was obtained in his native town, where he gave promise of exceptional mental qualities. As a youth he was studious and attentive to his school duties; he never needed to be urged, but rather had to be restrained from over study.

"In 1875, he graduated with credit from the Bunker Hill Grammar School of Boston. Entering the Cambridge High School, he did the five years' work in three years, and at graduation he held a high rank in his class. Very popular among his classmates, he was made first President of the High School Alumni Association then organized.

"In the fall of 1879, admitted to Harvard without conditions and with two honors, he completed two years of his college course in a very satisfactory manner, giving promise of a successful graduation. Very fond of philosophy, he was much inclined to dwell upon abstract and fundamental truths. He was always much interested in the Law, and very possibly would have followed it as a profession. Had his life been prolonged, he doubtless would have developed a strong and reliable judgment, the best guarantee of success in life. He was an ardent and faithful friend, and made pleasant acquaintances wherever he went.

"The typhoid fever, which terminated his life, was probably contracted by drinking infectious water from a well in Hubbardston.

"He had nearly recovered from the attack, when he was again prostrated by the excessive heat of September 6, the dark, oppressive, 'yellow day,' long to be remembered. This, and the succeeding day seemed to be the turning point of his disease; he grew rapidly worse, and passed away September 16, 1881.

"During his whole sickness he was very patient and never complained of pain. In his death the class lost one of rare intellectual ability, possessing a high sense of justice, combined with many other fine qualities of mind and character, which endeared him to his friends and associates."

L. L. B.

FREDERICK GEORGE BEMIS.

Joined the class of 1885, but did not take his degree. Is at present studying in the Harvard Law School.

CHARLES WESLEY BIRTWELL.

Was compelled, by ill-health, to withdraw from the class of 1882, in his senior year. In the following Autumn, he resumed his studies at Harvard, with a view to completing his course, but sickness again interrupted his work and he went to Florida, where he spent the Winter. From the Spring of 1883 to the Fall of 1884, he devoted his time to further rest and travel; then, having regained firm health, he returned to Cambridge, and graduated with the class of 1885. In September following, he was engaged by the Boston Children's Aid Society "to prosecute its work of charity and reform among the poor and morally-exposed children of Boston and vicinity."

CHARLES RENWICK BRECK.

Has resided, since leaving college, in Colorado and California, and is now living in Berkeley, Cal. Is at present in the employ of the "Southern Pacific Co.," incorporated under the laws of Kentucky. Was married July 12, 1880, at Denver, Col., to Henrietta Jane Stiles, of Deposit, N. Y. Has had two children: James Lloyd, born in Durango, Col., May 30, 1882, died at Benicia, Cal., August 5, 1883; and Charles Renwick, born in Berkeley, September 17, 1884.

FRANK TAYLOR BROWN.*

I copy the following from a notice sent to his classmates by the Secretary of 1882, with which class the deceased was most closely identified:—

"The sad news comes to us that our former classmate, Frank Taylor Brown, in a moment of insanity shot himself, at Carbon, Wyoming, October 2, 1885.

"He prepared for college at Exeter, and those of the class who knew him there will recall the sincerity and manliness that made him a general favorite. After leaving college in the Spring of 1880, he went in June to Wyoming, and learned the business of sheep-raising, in which he continued until his death. He was with us so short a time that comparatively few of the class learned to know him well, but those of us who did, will not forget his open, cordial friendship, and the many traits that endeared him to us."

JULIUS BUCHMAN.

"I am still connected with the firm of James Thompson & Co., manufacturers of twines and mosquito nets, New York City, having been suddenly called away from college to take charge of my sister's interest in this firm. I have joined the Harvard Club of this city, where I am enabled to recall many pleasant reminiscences of my college days.

FRANK WALDO BURDETT.

"I have lived in Brookline, Mass., but my place of business is at 3 Winthrop Square and 36 Otis Street, Boston. I have been engaged with the firm of Burdett, Young & Ingalls, Manufacturers and Jobbers of Men's and Boys' Clothing, of which firm my father is the senior member."

WILLIAM CHALFANT.

Studied law for two years, and then entered the office of his uncle, T. W. Marshall, West Chester, Pa., to learn the banking and brokerage business, where he expects to remain.

GEORGE EDWARD COLE.

Is studying medicine in Boston, where he has continued to reside since leaving college in 1881.

PALMER COOLIDGE.

"Upon leaving college in the Summer of 1881, I made preparations to complete my studies in Europe, and, with this object in view, sailed from New York the following November. The greater part of my time, while abroad, was spent in Germany, studying at the University of Berlin, and devoting myself mainly to the language and literature of the country.

At intervals, however, I found time to visit most of the principal cities of the Old World, from Northern Norway to Southern Italy. These travels cover a space of two years, and were especially beneficial in affording an opportunity which I had long desired of becoming familiar with the home manners and customs of these different nationalities.

In the fall of 1883, I returned to America, and commenced the study of law at the Columbian University of Washington, D. C., where, upon completing the course in one-half the required time, I was graduated in June of the following year. I next entered the law office of Mr. John Selden, of that city, and attended also a further course of lectures, for the degree of 'Master of Laws,' which I obtained in June, 1885. The same month I was admitted to the Bar of the District of Columbia, and immediately there after made a second voyage to Europe, devoting four months to travel and study. Upon my return in October, I began the practice of my profession, with my former preceptor."

HENRY CRAWFORD.

Has resided, since leaving college in 1880, in Chicago, where he is Secretary of the Chicago & Great Southern R. R. Co., and a member of the Calumet Club.

WILLIAM HERBERT CRAWFORD.

Early in 1884, he left the employ of Schoverling, Daly & Gales (see first Report), and entered the office of J. Edgar Leaycraft, real estate and insurance broker, 1544 Broadway, New York City, where he has since remained.

CHARLES EDWIN DAVIS.

Until 1884, he was in the employ of Ranlet & Knowles, Flour and Grain Commission Merchants, 150 State St., Boston, but has now left them and is living in Cambridge, Mass.

CHARLES HAMLIN DUNTON.

Was for some time a clerk at 338 Washington St., Boston but at last accounts, in 1885, was travelling in Europe.

DANIEL BUTLER FEARING.

Has left the shipping business, and is now a salesman in the city trade of Wm. Turnbull & Co., dealers in woollens, New York City. Is a member of the Calumet, Knickerbocker, and Seawanhaka Yacht Clubs.

EDWIN THAYER FEARING.

Has continued in the cordage business with A. L. Fearing & Co., Boston, and has traveled for the firm in the East and West. Was married June 10, 1884, at Watertown, Mass., to Alice C. Ingraham, daughter of William H. and Caroline B. Ingraham.

EDWARD ASHLEY FERGUSON.

After leaving college in 1880, took a position as clerk in the office of Merrell & Ferguson, Detroit, Mich., general agents for the Northwest, of the Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York, and is now acting as Superintendent of Agencies for them throughout their territory.

RICHARD BUCKMINSTER FULLER.

"In September, 1883, I came to New York, for the same firm with whom I had been for one year in Boston, and have remained here ever since. The firm is now styled Howe, Balch & Tay, India and So. America Commission Merchants. My journeys have been confined to business trips between Philadelphia, New York and Boston, and of late I have spent two days of each week in the latter city. Have joined the Harvard Club of New York, and the Puritan Club of Boston; and was connected last fall with several 'Mugwump' organizations in and about New York; have held no offices of profit, and none of honor worth mentioning."

WALTER ROGERS FURNESS.

Has continued to reside in Philadelphia, but is no longer engaged in business there. Has made frequent hunting trips to Canada, and to Nebraska where he owns a shooting box. Recently published in book form some specimens of original photographic work, entitled, "Composite Photography applied to the Portraits of Shakspere."

Was married June 2, 1886, to Miss Helen Bullitt, daughter of John C. Bullitt, Esq., of Philadelphia.

* FRANK HAMILTON HARVEY.

Frank Hamilton Harvey, the son of Dr. T. B. Harvey and Delitha (Butler) Harvey, of Indianapolis, Ind., was born at Plainfield, Hendricks County, Ind., November 4, 1859. He received his early training in the city schools, and in September, 1876, entered the Indianapolis Classical School, then just opened, where he remained for three years. Graduating in June, 1879, at the head of the first class which received diplomas in that school, in the same month he took the Harvard final entrance examinations, held in Chicago, passed without conditions, and entered college with our Class in the following Autumn. He had remained with us but a year, when on December 24, 1880, the very eve of Christmas, came the sad tidings that he had been drowned while skating at Cambridge, Mass., where he was spending the holidays.

The following tribute was published in the Indianapolis Sentinel, by Professor Sewell of the Classical School:—"Those who knew Frank Harvey will need no testimony to his character. He was all that is included in the grand word 'manly.' Unswervingly honest and truthful, courageous, painstaking in the discharge of all duties, faithful in every trust, he was a leader among his schoolmates, and gave every promise of being a leader among men. It was yet too soon to judge of the success of his college life, but none doubted that it would be successful. Among all those 1300 young men, he was deemed worthy of honorable mention by President Eliot in a private letter to a friend in this city; and on every ground of safe prophecy, he would have won in college as honorable a name as he did in school. To excellent ability he added also that most valuable of gifts, persevering and conscientious industry, thus promptly winning a foremost place among his mates. He excelled in manly sports, as well as in mental pursuits, and we may say in a word that his physical and mental powers combined to make a personality of unusual strength."

EVERETT WESLEY HATCH.*

Died in Abington, Mass., October 31, 1882. See first Report.

FRANCIS LORING HAYFORD.*

Died in Colorado Springs, Col., April 17, 1881. See first Report.

THOMAS BERRY HIGGINS.

Was compelled by ill health to withdraw from college, in 1880, and returned to his home in Washington, D. C. Here later he began the study of law, and has received two degrees, Bachelor of Laws, and Master of Laws, and has been admitted to the Bar. For the past two years he has held a position in the office of the Surgeon General of the U. S. Army. Is unmarried, and is a member of the Washington Harvard Club, the Georgetown Amateur Orchestra, and the Columbia Boat Club.

HENRY REESE HOYT.

Took his degree with '82. Studied law at the Columbia Law School, was admitted to the Bar, and began practice with the firm of Leavitt, Torrey & Hunt, which firm is now dissolved. In 1885, was travelling in Europe.

HARRY WALTER JONES.

Took his degree with '85, and has since been living in Cambridge, Mass.

WOODBURY KANE.

Has been living in New York City, and is not engaged in any business or profession.

CHARLES HAYDEN KIP.

Spent the Winter of 1883 in Buffalo, N. Y., engaged in the lumber business, and then came to Boston, where he has since remained, being for one year in the office of the Boston & Albany Railroad, and at present in the employ of Ross, Turner & Co., Twine Manufacturers.

STEPHEN STRICKLAND KIRBY.

Has continued in the practice of his profession, the law, at Towanda, Pa., and has nothing of especial interest to communicate.

COURTNEY LANGDON.

In September, 1881, accepted the position of teacher of French, German and Spanish, at the Episcopal Academy, Cheavie, Conn. After a year, was appointed Instructor in Modern Languages at Lehigh University, where he remained two years. Since then he has filled a position as a private tutor, and is at present a special student at Johns Hopkins University, under Dr. Adams of the Historical Department.

Was married, January 2, 1884, at Olean, N. J., to Julia H. Bolles, daughter of the Hon. D. H. Bolles, of that place.

PRESCOTT LAWRENCE.

Since 1882, has been travelling for pleasure, chiefly in Europe. Has transferred his residence from Boston to New York, and is not engaged in any business or profession.

GEORGE HENRY LEATHERBEE.

Took his degree with '82, and in the Winter after graduation entered the employ of Messrs. William H. Leatherbee & Son, Lumber Dealers, Boston, with whom he has been ever since having charge at present of their Western business, with head quarters at Parkersburg, West Va.

CYRUS EDWIN LOTHROP.

Has been practising law in Detroit, having been admitted to the Michigan Bar in 1884.

WILLIAM PRATT LYMAN.

In the Winter of 1885-6, began business as a stock broker, in Boston, where he has resided since leaving college. Is a member of the Somerset and Puritan Clubs. Was married, May 11, 1886, in New York, N. Y., to Miss Helen Beeckman, of that city.

ARTHUR FRED McARTHUR.

Took his degree with '82. June 1, 1884, was admitted to membership in the firm of McArthur Brothers, Contractors for Railroads & Public Improvements, Chicago, Ill., with whom he has since remained.

FREDERICK WILLIAM MORTON.

Severed his connection with the Divinity School (see first Report), in 1884, and went to Bloomington, Ill., where he has been the pastor of the Unitarian Church since November 23, 1884. Is a member of the Philosophical Society there, and Secretary of the Benevolent Association which dispenses from $1000 to $1,200 yearly. After leaving college, he was employed by S. E. Cassino & Co., to translate and abridge Hellwald's "Naturgeschichte des Menchen," a two volume work of 1100 octavo pages, on Anthropology, constituting the sixth volume of "The Standard Natural History," published by that firm. January 1, 1886, he contracted with the editor of the Chicago Times to furnish weekly during the year an article of a column and a half, selecting his own topics and treating them in his own fashion.

Was married, before entering college, November 26, 1878, at Orangeport, N. Y., to Hattie L. Cole; and has two sons, Harold Whittam, born in Cambridge, Mass., March 4, 1880, and Wallace Maxwell, born in Bloomington, Ill., October 19, 1885.

HUGH KINSLEY NORMAN.

Has been engaged in the business of building and engineering, and is at present Superintendent of the Water Works, at Gloucester, Mass.

WILLIAM TAPPAN PEIRCE.

Was employed in the construction of the Northern Pacific Railroad (see first Report), until December, 1883, when work closed for the Winter. In March, 1884, he returned to New Bedford, Mass., and remained there until April, 1885, when he went to Chicago and entered the service of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy R. R., as Assistant Engineer of the St. Louis Division, with headquarters at Beardstown, Ill., where he is still stationed.

GEORGE WILLIAM PERKINS.

Took his degree with '82. Graduated from the Harvard Medical School in 1885, and is at present House Surgeon in the Boston City Hospital.

JOHN WILLIAM POTTER.

Continues to reside in Brooklyn, N. Y., and is employed as a clerk in the office of his father, a merchant, at 80 South Street, New York City.

FREDERICK HENRY PRINCE.

Remained with C. E. Fuller & Co., Bankers & Brokers, State Street, Boston, until January 1, 1885, when he succeeded to the business of the above firm, and is now established in the same office at the head of the firm of F. H. Prince & Co.

Was married, in the Spring of 1884, to Miss Abby Kinsley Norman, daughter of George H. Norman, Esq., of Boston, and has one child, a son.

CHARLES EDWIN RAND.

Has resided in Chicago, Ill., and was for a time in the publishing house of Rand, McNally & Co. January 19, 1885, entered the real estate office of Bogue & Holt, and intends to make real estate and loans his permanent occupation. Has made no extended journeys except one, in the Winter of 1885-6, to Tennessee, South Carolina and Georgia, during which trip he was much impressed by the genuine desire, on the part of the South, for reconciliation between the sections, but thinks that "it will require another generation to make successful business men of the Southerners."

Is unmarried, and a member of the Chicago Harvard Club.

WALLACE RICE.

Was admitted to the Michigan Bar, March 24, 1884, to the Ohio Bar, at Columbus, May 22, 1884, passing first in a class of forty-five candidates, of whom twenty-three were rejected; and to the Illinois Bar, November 11, 1884; after which he was employed by various law firms until August 8, 1885, when he opened an office in Chicago.

Was married in May, 1882, but obtained a divorce in the Illinois courts January 28, 1885. In April, 1885, was unanimously elected Police Magistrate of Riverside, Cook Co., Ill. Holds membership in the Union, Iroquois, and Washington Park Driving Clubs, of Chicago; and in the Law Association and Law Club of that city; is secretary of the Tennis Club and chairman of the Philosophical Club, of Riverside, Ill.

WILLIAM ARMSTRONG ROGERS.

Since June, 1882, has been reading law. In December, 1883, was admitted to the Ohio Bar, and has since been practising in Cincinnati where he intends to establish himself.

CHARLES ROBERTSON SAUNDERS.

Took his degree with '84. For the past year has been employed on the Cambridge Tribune, and resides in Cambridge, Mass.

FRANCIS RICKETSON SLOCUM.

"Immediately after my withdrawal from college, I took a short trip through the Western States and Canada, returning to Brockton Mass., which city I made my abode for nine months. Was married, June 13, 1883, to Miss Phoebe F. Hayward, of Brockton, daughter of Daniel Hayward. During the Winter of 1883, removed to New Bedford, Mass., where I am engaged in the furniture business, under the firm name of Hayward & Slocum. I have a daughter, Marion, born August 1, 1885."

EDGAR DWIGHT SMITH.*

Died in Castile, N. Y., October 15, 1880. (See first Report.)

CHARLES INCHES STURGIS.

Entered the employ of the C. B. & Q. R. R. Co., at Chicago, in October 1880; and was transferred to Denver, Col., in the following Spring. Spent three years there, and returned to Chicago, August 1, 1884, where he expects to remain.

GEORGE HAINES TREADWELL.

Has received the degree of M.D., and is at present employed in the Colored Hospital, 65th Street and First Avenue, New York City.

GUSTAVUS TUCKERMAN.

Took his degree with '82. In September, 1883, entered the Episcopal Theological School, at Cambridge, from which he graduates in June, 1886.

ANDREW GRAY WEEKS.

"I left college in May, 1882, honorably, and for personal reasons. On August 1, following, I entered the firm of Weeks & Potter, Wholesale Druggists, of Boston, as clerk, where I still remain.

"October 10, 1883, I married Alice Standish Taber, daughter of Emily Howland and Edward Smith Taber, of New Bedford, Mass., and resided there, making daily trips to Boston, until September, 1884, when we moved to Ashmont, Dorchester, Mass. We have a son, Allen Taber, born in Ashmont, December 13, 1884."

BENJAMIN WICKHAM WELLINGTON.

"Since leaving Cambridge, I have resided in Corning, N. Y., my home. Immediately upon my return there, I was appointed assistant cashier of 'Q. W. Wellington & Co.'s Bank,' and at the same time was admitted as a partner in the firm (my father being the only other partner), both of which positions I now hold. I was appointed Treasurer of the Corning Public Library, in September, 1885; and Treasurer of the 'Hope Cemetery Association of Corning,' in February, 1886. My life here has been devoid of incidents other than those accompanying a moderately successful business experience."

JOHN ARTHUR WELLINGTON.*

Died at Quincy, Mass., in December, 1883. The Secretary has been unable, as yet, to find anyone who can furnish the material for a sketch of his life.

HORATIO HACKETT WELTON.

Took his degree with '85, and has since been living in Wolfville, Nova Scotia.

HENRY ELVER WESTON.

After leaving college, went West, and engaged in cattle raising, but has recently returned.

WILLIAM HUTCHINSON WESTON.

Has returned to Harvard, and is at present a student in the Sophomore class.

TRIENNIAL REVIEW.

The three years which have passed since our graduation, have been memorable in the history of the University. Changes have taken place which promise deeply to affect the common intellectual life of Harvard, and which have been the subject of the most intense interest and vigorous discussion in every prominent educational institution throughout the United States.

In 1884, by the logical extension of the elective system, three-fifths of the work of the Freshman year became subject to free election. Advanced Algebra, that bugbear of so many of us as Freshmen — and in some cases, indeed, as upperclassmen, also — Solid and Analytical Geometry, Trigonometry, Greek and Latin became no longer obligatory, the only prescribed work being Rhetoric and English Composition, three hours a week; German or French (whichever was not presented by the student for admission), three hours a week; and lectures on Chemistry and Physics, each once a week for a half year. In addition to this, every Freshman was required to take three full courses of elective study. This scheme of Freshman studies, at first experimental, was continued without modification in 1885; and although it is yet too soon to estimate fairly the workings of the new system, and of course impossible to anticipate results which only an extended period of trial can develop, it may, however, be noted that among the earliest effects has not been that so much apprehended by the advocates of the classics — the tendency to abandon the ancient languages; in 1884-85, out of 255 Freshmen, 196 electing Latin, and 163 Greek, while in 1885-86, the numbers were respectively 191 and 125, in a class of 258.

It must be borne in mind, moreover, that the aim has been not to abandon system, nor to lessen the work of the first year — the amount of study is still prescribed, and its results efficiently tested by the ordinary University methods, — but to render the existing system more adaptable to the natural intellectual diversity of those controlled by it, and to make the Freshman work a preliminary, but yet an important and consistent part of a four years course of liberal studies, unhampered by arbitrary restrictions. How far the courses offered for election can be made effective tools for the pruning and weeding-out process in the Freshman garden, for which purposes the higher mathematics were such invaluable horticultural implements, time alone can determine.

With the introduction of these new standards, changes in the requirements for admission were naturally considered in order to bring the preparatory-school work into closer and truer relation with that of the Freshman year. The report of the committee to whom this matter was referred, having been unanimously adopted by the Faculty, now awaits the action of the Corporation and Board of Overseers. It permits the optional substitution for admission Latin and Greek of advanced Mathematics, Chemistry or Physical Science, and recommends more careful preparation in English. The classical course, however, will undoubtedly continue to be the main avenue of entrance to Harvard for many years to come, so firm a hold has tradition upon the preparatory schools.

Such is a brief and bare outline of the changes in the Academical Department. And however we, who are perhaps in some measure laudatores temporis acti, may regard these innovations, they are worthy of the most earnest and respectful consideration as attempts to solve a mighty educational problem — the true value of ancient and modern studies in their relation to the preparatory training for a liberal culture.

The question of voluntary prayers was favorably considered some time ago by the Faculty, but this view did not then receive the concurrence of the Overseers. By vote of both bodies, however, the whole matter of religious instruction was committed to the charge of five preachers to the University, to be annually appointed, and to act in conjunction with the Plummer Professor of Christian Morals, now the Rev. Francis G. Peabody. The preachers for 1885-86 are the Rev. Drs. Hale ('39), Brooks ('55), McKenzie ('59), Montague ('75), and Gordon ('81), whose names are a sufficient guarantee that the conduct of the college devotional exercises will be characterized by that broader and more progressive spirit for which many undergraduates have been laboring. Compulsory attendance at Sunday chapel was now no longer required; and at length, on June 6, 1886, the regulations relating to enforced morning prayers were abolished by a concurrent vote.

The relations between the Faculty and the students have been much improved by the admission to the Committee on Athletic Sports of one graduate and two undergraduate members, and by the establishment of a Conference Committee, consisting of five Faculty members and sixteen students, for the discussion of matters affecting undergraduate interests.

Decoration Day, May 30, has been made, as long ago should have been the case, a University holiday.

Two scholarships have been founded by Judge John Lowell ('43), in memory of his son and our classmate, for distinguished excellence in classics and athletics, respectively.

The number of teachers and students, in the whole University, has steadily increased, as will be seen by the following table:—

	1882-3	1883-4	1884-5	1885-6
Students,	1428	1526	1586	1662
Teachers,	163	167	178	184

And yet, in no class since our own, has the number of graduates reached 200, the figures being 196 in 1884, and 185 in 1885. Eighty-three's record stands unrivalled.

The changes in the external aspect of the University, wrought during the past three years, have been no less noteworthy. Austin Hall, the new Law School (see opposite page), for which ground was broken in the spring of 1882, was completed in the Autumn of 1883, and is the gift of Edward Austin of Boston, in memory of his brother, Samuel Austin. Standing to the northwest of the Gymnasium, and facing south, it commands an unobstructed view towards Harvard Square, for "the stony foot of the great University" has at last been planted upon the old Holmes House, as the Doctor long ago predicted. This beautiful building, designed by the late H. H. Richardson ('59), is built, in the Provençal-Romanesque style, of red sandstone with trimmings of buff Ohio stone, its entrance being formed by a fine loggia with an arcade of clustered columns, the whole enriched by carved ornament and the delicate use of color in the material selected. It is 220 feet long and two stories high, with wings of one story each, and contains three lecture rooms, a superbly appointed reading room, and splendid accommodations for the valuable law library of 21,000 volumes.

To the northeast of the Gymnasium, in Holmes Field, now stands the new Physical Laboratory, the gift of Thomas Jefferson Coolidge ('50), of Boston. It is built of brick, four stories in height, and contains lecture and recitation rooms, rooms for special investigation, and the great laboratory equipped with everything which intelligence could devise to further physical research. In the first story, stone tables, each supported by its own columns of masonry without contact with the floors, supply firm foundations for the instruments; and a rectangular tower, isolated from the adjoining rooms, is used for investigations demanding extraordinary stability.

Behind the Laboratory, running east and west, extend the magnificent new athletic grounds, with the finest cinder track in the country; and, in the rear of the Gymnasium, successful borings have already taken place for the projected swimming bath to be connected therewith.

On the historic "delta," west of Memorial Hall, was unveiled, October 15, 1884, the statue of John Harvard, the gift of Samuel J. Bridge, of Boston. All that is at present known of the founder of our University, is that his signature for his bachelor's degree in 1631, and for his master's degree in 1635, stands on the register of Emanuel College in English Cambridge, with rank of "pensioner," indicating independent circumstances; that he was admitted as an inhabitant of Charlestown in the Colony of Massachusetts Bay, in 1637, and received grants of land from the town; and that, by a nuncupative will preceding his death, in 1638, he bequeathed the half of his estate to the "Colledge" at "New Towne," which had then been but two years in existence, and which was immediately honored by his name. The statue (see frontispiece) rests upon a low granite pedestal, in each side of which is sunk a bronze medallion bearing a coat of arms — the seals respectively of Harvard and Emanuel. The portrait, of course, is an ideal one; but the grave, refined, scholarly face, gently touched by the disease which was "wasting his immature life," and the academic costume of the time, have been skilfully employed by the sculptor to create a type which might well represent him who, to use Cotton

Mather's phrase, "left his home in England, and took New England on his way to Heaven."

The following brief record cannot but prove of interest to all, as an indication that Harvard's athletic reputation has not suffered in the keeping of our successors: —

UNIVERSITY RACE.—June 18, 1884. Harvard vs. Columbia. Won by Harvard; time, 24 min. 21 sec. Columbia's time, 24 min. 39 sec.

UNIVERSITY RACE.—June 26, 1884. Harvard vs. Yale. Won by Yale; time, 20 min. 31 sec. Harvard's time, 20 min. 48 sec.

FRESHMAN RACE.—June 26, 1884. Harvard vs. Columbia. Won by Columbia; time, 9 min. 43¼ sec. Harvard's time, 9 min. 50¼ sec.

UNIVERSITY RACE.—June 20, 1885. Harvard vs. Columbia. Won by Harvard; time, 24 min. 27 sec. Columbia's time, 26 min. 22. sec.

UNIVERSITY RACE.—June 26, 1885. Harvard vs. Yale. Won by Harvard; time, 25 min. 15½ sec. Yale's time, 26 min. 30 sec.

FRESHMAN RACE.—June 25, 1885. Harvard vs. Columbia. Won by Harvard; time, 12 min. 22 sec. Columbia's time, 13 min. 12 sec.

The Class Races have resulted as follows: — In 1884: 1, '84; 2, '85; 3, '86; 4, '87. Winner's time, 11 min. 12 sec. In 1885: 1, '87; 2, '85; 3, '88; 4, '86. Winner's time, 11 min. 13½ sec. In 1886: 1, '88; 2, '89; 3, '87; 4, '86. Winner's time, 12 min. 30 sec. Thus, Eighty-three still remains the only class whose Freshman crew has been victorious in the Class Races.

BASE BALL.— In 1884. Games won 18, lost, 8. Harvard tied Yale for the championship, but lost the deciding game 4—2. In 1885. Games won, 26; lost, 1. Harvard, under the able management of S. E. Winslow, '85, and with a nine recalling the days of Ernst and Tyng, won every intercollegiate game, defeating Yale 12 — 4, and 16 — 2. In 1886. At time of writing, has only lost one game, with three to play.

INTERCOLLEGIATE SPORTS.—The Mott Haven Cup was won for the seventh successive time, in 1886, and is now the property of Harvard.

FOOT BALL.— In 1883-4. Games won, 8; lost, 2. The game with Yale was lost, 23 points to 2. In 1884-5, the Faculty prohibited the game, having come to the conclusion that, as at present played, it is brutal, demoralizing and dangerous; and Harvard accordingly withdrew from the intercollegiate association.

In the field of college journalism a new venture has been made. This is the Harvard Monthly, an attractive and well conducted paper, which aims to preserve as far as possible the best literary work produced in college by undergraduates. It also publishes work of merit in required and elective courses in English, and contains in each number a contributed article by some prominent graduate. Its tone is more distinctly literary than that of the other college journals, and its character and purpose should insure success. The Weekly Crimson joined fortunes, in 1884, with the Harvard Herald, under the name of the Daily Herald-Crimson; but in the following year it discarded the first part of its compound title, and now appears as the Daily Crimson. The other college papers have undergone no change.

There are no additions to the list of societies to chronicle, but we may, perhaps, note the rise of the Harvard Brass Band, whose abilities have been frequently severely tested in its efforts to furnish a sufficiency of "Yale men say," on occasions of victorious celebration.

A series of lectures to the students on the choice of a profession, by Judge Holmes, Rev. Phillips Brooks, and others, has been a notable feature of the past year. And in the Winter of 1884-5, the Shakspere Club gave a creditable performance of Julius Caesar, in Sanders Theatre.

Four honored professors have been taken from the University by death: Dr. Calvin Ellis, Jackson Professor of Clinical Medicine, on December 14, 1883; Evangelinus Apostolides Sophocles, University Professor of Ancient, Byzantine and Modern Greek, on December 17, 1883; Ezra Abbot, Bussey Professor of New Testament Criticism and Interpretation, on March 21, 1884; and Henry Lawrence Eustis, Professor of Engineering and Dean of the Scientific Faculty, on January 11, 1885.

In November, 1886, Harvard is to celebrate the 250th anniversary of its foundation, and a series of commemorative exercises will take place, extending over a period of four days, to which every department of the University, past and present, will make an appropriate contribution.

APPENDIX.

CLASS MEETINGS.

The Class has occupied No. 11 Stoughton on Commencement Days. At the first meeting it was voted, on a motion by the Secretary, that in the event of the death of a classmate, no formal class meeting should be called to draw up conventional resolutions, but that the Secretary should be authorized to convey to family or friends, in a letter written after the Commencement next succeeding, the assurance that the Class, at its last reunion, held in affectionate remembrance its former associate.

CLASS BABY.

The Class Baby, Richard Taylor Evans, son of George William Evans, of Boston, Mass., was born April 27, 1885. The claim preferred on his behalf was duly considered, and after the lapse of an interval sufficient to admit of inquiries with regard to other possible aspirants, the Class Cradle, suitably adorned and furnished, was forwarded to the fortunate child with the best wishes of 'Eighty-three.

CLASS ENTERTAINMENTS.

The Secretary and Class Committee assumed the responsibility of discontinuing the custom of rum punch at Commencement, — a custom answerable for much disorder on that day, and the reform of which has engaged the earnest attention of the Harvard Alumni Association. The refreshment provided has been ten gallons of claret punch, and five gallons each of shandy gaff and soda lemonade, with sandwiches, olives, etc., and the convivial enjoyment of our reunions has not apparently suffered any diminution in consequence.

CLASS LIVES.

Since the publication of the first Report, three additional class lives have been sent to the Secretary, making a total of fifty-four from the whole class. I am constrained to emphasize again the importance of repairing neglect of duty in this regard, and will cheerfully furnish any information which you may need in preparing the desired autobiographies. The facts, which you alone can supply, are of distinct value to the University, of great assistance to the Secretary, and need demand surely little exertion from yourselves.

DEATHS.

Four of our number we have lost since graduation,—two graduate members, only one of whom, however, was with us throughout the college course, and two temporary members, one more prominently identified with the class of '82 than with our own. Sketches of these classmates who have fallen so early in the race, will be found in their proper places in the body of the Report.

TRIENNIAL DINNER.

The Triennial Dinner will take place at Young's Hotel, on the evening of Tuesday, June 29, the day before Commencement, when the Report will be distributed. About one hundred and fifty men have signified their intention to be present, and no pains will be spared to make our first graduate dinner a pleasant and memorable occasion.

RESIDENCE.

The following table shows the changes in Residence since 1883.

	1883.		1886.
Arizona	0		1
California	5		8
Colorado	0		2
Connecticut	2		0
District of Columbia	2		1
Florida	1		1
Illinois	3		3
India	0		1
Iowa	2		0
Japan	2		2
Kansas	0		1
Kentucky	3		3
Maine	9		5
Maryland	1		2
Massachusetts	122	(Boston, 38) 76	114
Michigan	0		1
Minnesota	3		4
Missouri	0		3
Montana	1		0
New Hampshire	3		2
New Jersey	3		1
New Mexico	1		2
New York	18	(New York City, 21) 6	27
Nova Scotia	1		1
Ohio	5		2
Pennsylvania	4		5
Philippine Islands	0		1
Rhode Island	5		3
South Carolina	0		1
Utah	1		0
Vermont	4		1
Washington Territory	0		2
West Virginia	1		0
Wisconsin	2		2
Wyoming	0		1
Deceased	0		2
	205		205

OCCUPATIONS.

The following table compares the "probable occupations," given in 1883, with the actual occupations in 1886 :—

	1883.	1886.
Law	61	51
Business	57	41
Undecided	28	9
Teaching	17	22
Medicine	18	20
Journalism	5	10
Banking	0	7
Ministry	6	7
Ranching	0	6
Study	3	6
Architecture	2	3
Chemistry	4	3
Physical Science	2	3
Farming	0	3
Publishing	0	3
Engineering	0	2
Mining	0	2
Others	2	5
Deceased	0	2
	205	205

The Class is distributed among these different occupations as follows :—

Law.—G. M. Andrews, Bachelder, A. C. Burrage, G. D. Burrage, E. T. Cabot, H. B. Cabot, Chapman, J. S. Clark, Cole, Crapo, C. P. Curtis, Dame, Day, Denniston, Easton, Endicott, Faxon, Fay, H. M. Hall, J. M. Hall, Hamlin, Heilbron, Howe, Hubbard, Jennings, Jones, Kaan, Keating, Kent, Lee, Lloyd, Lyman, McInnes, Mackie, Moffat, Moulton, C. C. Nichols, Norris, O'Callaghan, W. H. Page, Ranney, Richardson, Ryer, E. W. Sawyer, F. L. Sawyer, Sessions, Sharp, Soren, Wigmore, Wilcox, Wyman. 51, or 25 per cent.

Business.—Allen, Aspinwall, J. E. Baker, Baxter, Beals, Bryant, Burch, Canterbury, Chandler, F. L. Clark, Codman, W. Curtis, G. M. Davis, J. E. Davis, Dorr, Earle, Edwards, Ferris, Hayward, Johnson, Keith, Lombard, Machado, McKay, Morison, Nakawara, Noyes, Park, Pearmain, Perry, Pollard, Preston, Ranlet, Reed, Richmond, Sherwood, W. R. Warren, Weston, Wilson, G. S. Winslow, W. C. Winslow.

41, or 20 per cent.

Teaching.—Babbitt, L. L. Baker, S. C. Clark, Cowgill, Damon, Evans, Garrison, Gerould, Getchell, Grandgent, Hodges, Holmes, Howell, Marsh, G. H. Nichols, Patterson, O. Putnam, Sheffield, Sprague, Wentworth, White, Woodbury.
22, or 11 per cent.

Medicine.—Briggs, W. L. Burrage, Clarke, Dana, Dow, Eaton, Francis, Heywood, Jack, Jacobs, Knight, Lilienthal, W. T. Lord, Mitchell, Morris, Morse, Paul, H. F. Sears, Stone, Worcester. 20, or 10 per cent.

Journalism.—R. G. Butler, L. A. Coolidge, Cushing, Fox, Hooke, Rublee, J. B. Smith, Sullivan, Tingle, Wingate.
10, or 5 per cent.

Undecided.—Atwood, Binney, Cummings, Moors, F. Nichols, G. H. Page, R. D. Sears, C. W. Smith, Tonks. 9.

Banking.—J. R. Coolidge, Dunn, Jennison, Rockwell, Sanger, Winthrop, Witmer. 7.

Ministry.—Grant, Hewitt, A. M. Lord, Nies, Rousmaniere, W. E. C. Smith, Williams. 7.

Ranching.—H. A. Andrews, Chase, Dewson, Ennis, Fuller, Paulin. 6.

Study.—Brackett, Hale, Haskell, Henderson, Lane, E. P. Warren. 6.

Architecture.—Coit, Perkins, Porter. 3.

Chemistry.—Loeb, C. P. Nichols, Pennock. 3.

Electric Lighting.—Hayes, Sparrow, Stevens. 3.

Farming.—E. K. Butler, C. M. Hammond, G. G. Hammond. 3.

Publishing.—Hooper, Kellogg, O. G. Smith. 3.

Engineering.—Goodnough, Smyth. 2.

Mining.—Belshaw, Perin. 2.

Miscellaneous.—Engraving, Robinson. Library Work, H. Putnam. Government Service, Kikkawa. Music, S. Coolidge. Railroads, Edgerly. 5.

The changes have been as follows: From Undecided: to business, 5; to teaching, 4; to medicine, 2; to ministry, 2; to law, 2; to farming, 3; to others, 5. From Business: to law, 5; to ranching, 4; to medicine, 3; to others, 5. From Law: to undecided, 3; to journalism, 3; to business, 3; to medicine, 2; to teaching, 2; to others, 4. From Medicine: to teaching, 1; to journalism, 1; to business, 1; to ranching, 1; to chemistry, 1. From Teaching: to law, 1; to medicine, 1; to study, 1. From Ministry: to study, 1. From Study: to business, 1. From others: to business, 1; to study, 1.

Europe.—Since graduation, the following have visited foreign countries:—G. M. Andrews, Binney, Brackett, G. D. Burrage, E. T. Cabot, H. B. Cabot, F. L. Clark, J. S. Clark, Coit, J. R. Coolidge, W. Curtis, Denniston, Earle, Endicott, Ferris, Garratt, Grandgent, Haskell, Henderson, Kent, Kikkawa, Lane, Lee, Loeb, Lombard, Lyman, Moors, Morison, Nakawara, C. C. Nichols, Noyes, Park, Paulin, Perkins, Pollard, Preston, Rousmaniere, R. D. Sears, E. P. Warren, Weston, G. S. Winslow, Winthrop. 42, or 21 per cent.

Married.—Babbitt, Burch, A. C. Burrage, Brackett, Cowgill, Damon, Dorr, Evans, Lombard, Marsh, Pearmain, Perry, Ranney, E. W. Sawyer, F. L. Sawyer, J. B. Smith, Wingate. 17, or 8 per cent.

Officials.—The following have been employed in the service of the University since graduation:— Atwood, J. R. Coolidge, Cummings, Garratt, Grandgent, Haskell, Hubbard, Jacobs, Lane, Marsh, Pennock, Perin, White, Worcester. 14, or 7 per cent.

DEGREES.—Since graduation, the following have received degrees from Harvard: J. R. Coolidge, Cummings, Garratt, Haskell, Hayes, Henderson, McInnes, Moors, Smyth. 9.

CLASS AND COLLEGE FUNDS.

The condition of the Class Fund at the present time (June 3), is shown by the following table:

Subscribed at graduation (143 subscribers)		$6,550.00
" since graduation 1 subs. of $100 = $100
1 " " 75 = 75
4 " " 50 = 200
1 " " 40 = 40
7 " " 25 = 175
1 " " 20 = 20 = 15 =		610.00
		$7,160.00
Cancelled by death, $40; withdrawn, $50		90.00
Present Fund (157 subscribers)		$7,070.00
Paid in full (9 subscribers)		555.00
		$6,515.00
Not yet due		1,304.00
Due		$5,211.00
Instalments paid		2,884.00
Instalments due and unpaid		$2,327.00

The instalments due and unpaid are divided as follows:

1st instalment	$128.00
2d "	391.00
3d "	604.00
4th "	1,204.00

With the largest class that ever graduated, our Class Fund is the smallest, with one exception, since that of '78. Many have subscribed little, who could have easily given larger amounts; many whose circumstances warranted generous contributions, have been content to reap the benefits from the fund without sharing its burdens. Every effort, therefore, has been made to keep the expenses within a moderate compass, and our yearly outlay has been much less than that of preceding classes; yet the heavy draft made upon our small principal immediately after graduation, and the slowness with which the succeeding instalments have been paid, have rendered it impossible to realize much from invested funds. If the due and unpaid subscriptions shall be promptly discharged, as I earnestly request, our income will prove more nearly adequate to meet the annual demands thereon.

The cash on hand is deposited with the New England Trust Company, of Boston, and draws interest at two per cent. As fast as it accumulates in sufficient quantities, it will be invested in reliable bonds, after careful consideration and on the best advice. We have, at present, two $1,000 Burlington & Missouri R. R. in Nebraska 4 per cent Bonds, bought at 97½, now selling at 98. A detailed statement of the Class Finances will be found at the end of this Report. The balance is unusually large, as the Triennial expenses will of necessity be heavy.

The condition of the College Fund at the present time (June 3), is shown by the following table:—

Subscribed at graduation (41 subscribers)	$2,685.00
" since graduation, 3 subs. of $50 = 3 = ...	150.00
	$2,835.00
Cancelled by death, $45; withdrawn, $75 = ...	120.00
Present Fund (44 subscribers)	$2,715.00
Paid in full (3 subscribers)	400.00
	$2,315.00
Not yet due	1,461.00
Due	$854.00
Instalments paid	307.50
Instalments due and unpaid	$546.50

The size of our College Fund at graduation was exceedingly gratifying, and it has moreover received three additional subscriptions. The money has been paid over, without investment, to Mr. A. B. Silsbee, Trustee.

MARRIAGES, BIRTHS AND DEATHS.

MARRIAGES.

Babbitt	Ida L. Adams	Worcester, Mass., September 2, 1884.
Brackett	Susan Katharine Jones	Baltimore, Md., June 16, 1886.
Burch	Mary Louise Darling	Boston, Mass., November 11, 1884.
Burrage, A. C.	Alice Hathaway Haskell	Roxbury, Mass., November 10, 1885.
Cowgill	Lillie Amanda Schuyler	Berea, Ohio, December 20, 1883.
Damon	Mabel Beal	Pembroke, Mass., December 24, 1884.
Dorr	Josephine Swift	Chicago, Ill., June 15, 1885.
Evans	Mary Teresa Taylor	Lebanon, N. H., July 26, 1883.
Lombard	Laura Ayer	Boston, Mass., June 17, 1886.
Marsh	Marie Bigelow	Newport, Mass., March 20, 1886.
Pearmain	Alice Whittemore Upton	East Jaffrey, N. H., June 3, 1886.
Perry	Virginia Adelaide Bowen	Rehoboth, Mass., March 16, 1882.
Ranney	Amy H. Porter	Haverhill, Mass., June 22, 1886.
Sawyer, E. W.	Emma Bernal Crawley	Wolfville, N. S., August 5, 1884.
Smith, J. B.	Minnie A. Sturtevant	Springfield, Mass., June 9, 1886.
Wingate	Mabel Nickerson	Boston, Mass., September 9, 1885.

Allen, W. H.	Margaret Eliot Comstock	Greenfield, Mass., October 30, 1883.
Breck	Henrietta Jane Stiles	Denver, Col., July 12, 1880.
Fearing, E. T.	Alice C. Ingraham	Watertown, Mass., June 10, 1884.
Furness	Helen Bullitt	Philadelphia, Pa., June 2, 1886.
Langdon	Julia H. Bolles	Olean, N. J., January 2, 1884.
Lyman, W. P.	Helen Beeckman	New York, N. Y., May 11, 1886.
Morton	Hattie L. Cole	Orangeport, N. Y., November 26, 1876.
Prince	Abby Kinsley Norman	Boston, Mass., April, 1884.
Slocum	Phoebe F. Hayward	Brockton, Mass., June 13, 1883.
Weeks	Alice Standish Taber	New Bedford, Mass., October 10, 1883.

BIRTHS.

Babbitt	Louis Angell	Media, Pa., July 9, 1885.
Burch	Eleanor	Necedah, Wis., March 22, 1886.
Cowgill	Alberta Amanda	Berea, Ohio, January 15, 1886.
Evans	Richard Taylor	Indianapolis, Ind., April 27, 1885.
Perry	Edward Bowen	Holyoke, Mass., March 12, 1883.
"	Oscar Seagrave (d. Sept. 5, 1885)	Holyoke, Mass., November 9, 1884.
Sawyer	Bernal Wyman	Wolfville, N. S. August 24, 1885.

Allen	Dorothea	Batavia, Ill., August 5, 1884.
Breck	James Lloyd (d. August 5, 1883)	Durango, Col., May 30, 1882.
"	Charles Renwick	Berkeley, Cal., September 17, 1884.
Langdon	Eglantine Courtney (d. Feb. 25, 1885)	Bedford, Pa., Nov. 3, 1884.
Morton	Harold Whittam	Cambridge, Mass., March 4, 1880.
"	Wallace Maxwell	Bloomington, Ill., October 19, 1885.
Prince	A son	Boston, Mass., December, 1885.
Slocum	Marion	New Bedford, Mass., August 1, 1885.
Weeks	Allen Taber	Ashmont, Mass., December 13, 1884.

DEATHS.

Garratt	Zurich, Switzerland	January 20, 1885.
Lowell	Buffalo, N. Y.	May 26, 1884.

Baker, B. E.	East Templeton, Mass.	September 16, 1881.
Brown	Carbon, Wyoming	October 2, 1885.
Harvey	Cambridge, Mass.	December 24, 1880.
Hatch	Abington, Mass.	October 31, 1882.
Hayford	Colorado Springs, Col	April 17, 1881.
Smith, E. D.	Castile, N. Y.	October 15, 1880.
Wellington, J. A.	Quincy, Mass.	December, 1883.

ADDRESSES.

The Secretary should be notified at once of any change in address. Neglect of this duty will be, as it already has been, productive of the greatest inconvenience both to yourselves and to him. A list of addresses will be distributed annually if warranted by a sufficient number of changes in the interval.

Allen, G. H. H., New Bedford, Mass.
Andrews, G. M., Englewood, N. J.
Andrews, H. A., Dixon, Wyoming.
Aspinwall, W. H., Brookline, Mass.
Atwood, Luther, Exeter, N. H.
Babbitt, A. B., Media, Pa.
Bachelder, T. C., 1 Dexter St., South Boston, Mass.
Baker, J. E., Care Dewey, Gould & Dyke, 169 Congress St., Boston, Mass.
Baker, L. L., East Templeton, Mass.
Baxter, D. N., Rutland, Vt.
Beals, G. W., 52 Pearl St., Boston, Mass.
Belshaw, C. M., 1626 Jackson St., San Francisco, Cal.
Binney, Horace, Care Wilbour, Jackson & Co., Providence, R. I.
Brackett, J. R. Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md.
Briggs, C. P., 15 Bradford St., Lawrence, Mass.
Bryant, W. W., Care C. H. Bailey & Co., 15 Hare St., Calcutta, India.
Burch, J. M., Necedah, Juneau Co., Wis.
Burrage, A. C., 32 Pemberton Square, Boston, Mass.
Burrage, G. D., Chestnut Hill, Mass.
Burrage, W. L., 282 Newbury St., Boston, Mass.
Butler, E. K., Martin, Marion Co., Fla.
Butler, R. G. Scarsdale, N. Y.
Cabot, E. T., Brookline, Mass.
Cabot, H. B., Brookline, Mass.
Canterbury, C. D., East Weymouth, Mass.
Chandler, John, 18 Post Office Square, Boston, Mass.
Chapman, H. G., 191 Second Ave., New York, N. Y.
Chase, H. E., Care H. L. Chase, Brookline, Mass.
Clark, F. L., Spokane Falls, Washington Territory.

Clark, J. S., Care E. W. Clark, Germantown, Pa.
Clark, S. C., West Boxford, Mass.
Clarke, M. H., New Bedford, Mass.
Codman, R. S., 57 Marlborough St., Boston, Mass.
Coit, Robert, Winchester, Mass.
Cole, C. D'U. M., 35 Wall St., New York, N. Y.
Coolidge, J. R., 147 Beacon St., Boston, Mass.
Coolidge, L. A. Natick, Mass.
Coolidge, Sumner, Mt. Auburn, Mass.
Cowgill, T. W., Salina, Kansas.
Crapo, H. H., New Bedford, Mass.
Cummings, Edward, 150 Union St., Lynn, Mass.
Curtis, C. P., 27 Kilby St., Boston, Mass.
Curtis, Walter, Care B. R. Curtis, 28 School St., Boston, Mass.
Cushing, M. H., Daily Globe Office, Boston, Mass.
Dame, W. R., Clinton, Mass.
Damon, W. E., Bryantville, Mass.
Dana, W. L., 181 State St., Portland, Me.
Davis, G. M., 236 West Chestnut St., Louisville, Ky.
Davis, J. E., 234 Devonshire St., Boston, Mass.
Day, Stanton, 294 Commonwealth Ave., Boston, Mass.
Denniston, A. C., 35 South 3d St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Dewson, G. B., Quincy, Mass.
Dorr, Joseph, 12 Walnut St., Boston, Mass.
Dow, E. S., Chestnut Hill, Mass.
Dunn, G. G., 51 South 3d St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Earle, Morris, Care W. H. Walmsley & Co., 1016 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Easton, J. H. B., Rochester, Minn.
Eaton, P. J. Maplewood, Mass.
Edgerly, J. H. W., National City, San Diego Co., Cal.
Edwards, H. R., Care Edwards, Townsend & Co., Cleveland, Ohio.
Endicott, W. C., 365 Essex St., Salem, Mass.
Ennis, R. B., Las Vegas, New Mexico.
Evans, G. W., English High School, Montgomery St., Boston, Mass.
Faxon, William, 62 Chester Square, Boston, Mass.
Fay, F. B., 24 Warland St., Cambridgeport, Mass.
Ferris, L. R., Brookline, Mass.

Fox, J. W., Paris, Bourbon Co., Ky.
Francis, R. P., Brookline, Mass.
Fuller, Waldo, Dolores, La Plata Co., Cal.
Garrison, W. H., Care Rev. J. F. Garrison, Camden, N. J.
Gerould, C. W., Care Wm. Macklem, Normal Park, Cook Co., Ill.
Getchell, Clarence, Exeter, N. H.
Goodnough, B. F., Care Xanthus Goodnough, Brookline, Mass.
Grandgent, C. H., Cambridge, Mass.
Grant, P. S., St. Paul St., Brookline, Mass.
Hale, E. E. Jr., 39 Highland St., Roxbury, Mass.
Hall, H. M., Ellsworth, Me.
Hall, J. M., 8 White St., Haverhill, Mass.
Hamlin, C. S., 49 Winthrop St., Roxbury, Mass.
Hammond, C. M., Red Hill Ranch, Upper Lake, Lake Co., Cal.
Hammond, G. G., " " " " " " " "
Haskell, M. W., West Roxbury, Mass.
Hayes, H. V., 22 Buckingham St., Cambridge, Mass.
Hayward, W. E., 179 Broadway, New York, N. Y.
Heilbron, G. H., 28 Chester Park, Boston, Mass.
Henderson, E. F., 111 Spring St., New York, N. Y.
Hewitt, G. R., 111 Vernon St., Roxbury, Mass.
Heywood, George, Jr., Concord, Mass.
Hodges, A. L., Box 185, Taunton, Mass.
Holmes, B. B., 30 Wingate, St., Haverhill, Mass.
Hooke, C. W., 237 E. 13th St., New York, N. Y.
Hooper, F. H., Century Co., Union Square, New York, N. Y.
Howe, G. E., Vernon, Vt.
Howell, E. C., Hotel Brexton, Park Ave. & Tyson St., Baltimore, Md.
Hubbard, C. J., Montpelier, Vt.
Jack, E. S., 76 Waterville St., Portland, Me.
Jacobs, H. B., West Scituate, Mass.
Jennings, W. C., Care Dr. Packard, Hotel Chatham, West Concord St., Boston, Mass.
Jennison, F. E., 41 Wall St., New York, N. Y.
Johnson, L. O., Salem, Mass.
Jones, Paul, Rochester, Minn.
Kaan, F. W., Somerville, Mass.
Keating, P. M., 44 Court St., Room 5, Boston, Mass.

Keith, G. P., Care Dunn, Green & Co., 30 South St., Boston, Mass.
Kellogg, W. F., 95 Mt. Vernon St., Boston, Mass.
Kent, Edward, Care F. A. Wilson, Bangor, Me.
Kikkawa, Chokichi, 7 Awaji 2nd St., Kanda, Tokio, Japan.
Knight, S. H., 92 Essex St., Salem, Mass.
Lane, A. C., 623 Tremont St., Boston, Mass.
Lee, Joseph, 40 State St., Boston, Mass.
Lilienthal, Howard, Saratoga Springs, N. Y.
Lloyd, H. M., Montclair, N. J.
Loeb, Morris, P. O. Box 1193, New York, N. Y.
Lombard, W. A., Sears Building, Room 13, Boston, Mass.
Lord, A. M., 12 Lowell St., Cambridge, Mass.
Lord, W. T., 13 Greenville St., Boston, Mass.
Lyman, Arthur, 39 Beacon St., Boston, Mass.
Machado, J. A., 5 Carpenter St., Salem, Mass.
McInnes, E. G., Box 481, Malden, Mass.
McKay, R. C., 142 Marlborough St., Boston, Mass.
Mackie, D. I., Great Barrington, Mass.
Marsh, A. R., 14 Mt. Vernon Court, Newport, R. I.
Mitchell, Dr. Sollace, Corner Forsyth, Julia & Adams Sts., Jacksonville, Fla.
Moffat, R. B., 17 Schermerhorn St., Brooklyn, N. Y.
Moors, J. F., Care J. B. Moors, Esq., 23 Congress St., Boston, Mass.
Morison, G. B., Puritan Club, Boston, Mass.
Morris, G. P., 561 8th St., South Boston, Mass.
Morse, C. F., 77 Myrtle St., Boston, Mass.
Moulton, F. W., 127 Water St., New York, N. Y.
Nakawara, Gisaburo, 7 Awaji 2nd St., Kanda, Tokio, Japan.
Nichols, C. C., Everett, Mass.
Nichols, C. P., 3 James St., Lowell, Mass.
Nichols, Frederick, 2 Joy St., Boston, Mass.
Nichols, G. H., 395 East 5th St., South Boston, Mass.
Nies, W. E., St. George's Clergy-house, East 16th St., New York, N. Y.
Norris, Samuel, Bristol, R. I.
Noyes, J. A., 155 Remsen St., Brooklyn, N. Y.
O'Callaghan, R. E., Care Peter O'Callaghan, Esq., Salem, Mass.
Page, G. H., 1940 Washington St., Boston, Mass.

Page, W. H., 28 West 9th St., New York, N. Y.
Park, T. L., Lotus Club, New York, N. Y.
Patterson, J. L., 48 Barr St., Lexington, Ky.
Paul, W. E., Auburn, Me.
Paulin, L. R. E., Care Class Secretary.
Pearmain, S. B., 51 State St., Boston, Mass.
Pennock, J. D., Sycamore St., Somerville, Mass.
Perin, C. P., Care Class Secretary.
Perkins, C. B., Puritan Club, Boston, Mass.
Perry, O. E., Care Holyoke Machine Co., Worcester, Mass.
Pollard, A. W., Box 2751, Boston, Mass.
Porter, G. J., Medford, Mass.
Preston, J. F., 13 Chestnut St., Boston, Mass.
Putnam, Herbert, Athenenm Library, Minneapolis, Minn.
Putnam, Osgood, Care W. D. Whitney, New Haven, Conn.
Ranlet, Charles, Holyoke, Mass.
Ranney, Fletcher, 23 Court St., Boston, Mass.
Reed, F. G., Amoskeag M'f'g Co., Manchester, N. H.
Richardson, D. M., Nesmith St., Lowell, Mass.
Richmond, Philip, 46 Angell St., Providence, R. I.
Robinson, C. E., 21 Park St., Somerville, Mass.
Rockwell, C. R., Tarrytown, N. Y.
Rousmaniere, E. S., 57 Monroe St., Roxbury, Mass.
Rublee, W. A., Milwaukee, Wis.
Ryer, F. F., 103 Montgomery St., San Francisco, Cal.
Sanger, S. P., Care Blake Bros. & Co., State St., Boston, Mass.
Sawyer, E. W., Wolfville, N. S.
Sawyer, F. L., Cumberland Centre, Me.
Sears, H. F., 86 Beacon St., Boston, Mass.
Sears, R. D., 51 Beacon St., Boston, Mass.
Sessions, A. L., Care John Sessions, Esq., 32 Pine St., New York, N. Y.
Sharp, Raymer, 1728 Golden Gate Ave., San Francisco, Cal.
Sheffield, J. H., Manistee, Mich.
Sherwood, J. D., Spokane Falls, Washington Territory.
Smith, C. W., 30 Elm St., Worcester, Mass.
Smith, J. B., Box 1058, Springfield, Mass.
Smith, O. G., 31 Rose St., New York, N. Y.
Smith, W. E. C., 13 Warren Ave., Boston, Mass.
Smyth, H. L., 2340 Chapline St., Wheeling, West Va.

Soren, Walter, 12 Humphreys St., Dorchester, Mass.
Sparrow, F. M., Mattapoisett, Mass.
Sprague, H. E., 1 Carrol St., Worcester, Mass.
Stevens, N. C., Willoughby, Lake Co., Ohio.
Stone, A. K., Framingham, Mass.
Sullivan, W. D., 34 Glen St., East Somerville, Mass.
Tingle, E. W. S., "Globe" Office, St. Paul, Minn.
Tonks, Alfred, Denver, Colorado.
Warren, E. P., Care S. D. Warren, 220 Devonshire St., Boston, Mass.
Warren, W. R., 114 John St., New York, N. Y.
Wentworth, W. W., Englewood, Cook Co., Ill.
Weston, A. J., Weston & Gray, 15 to 25 Whitehall St., New York, N. Y.
White, D. A., Englewood, Cook Co., Ill.
Wigmore, J. H., 2002 Pacific St., San Francisco, Cal.
Wilcox, R. B., Care Jewell & Thompson, Delaware Block, Kansas City, Mo.
Williams, W. H., Wakefield, Mass.
Wilson, R. D., Care Peele, Hubbell & Co., Iloilo, Philippine Islands; via San Francisco and Manila.
Wingate, C. E. L., Exeter, N. H.
Winslow, G. S., 113 Pinckney St., Boston, Mass.
Winslow, W. C., 68 Rutland St., Boston, Mass.
Winthrop, R. D., Knickerbocker Club, New York, N. Y.
Witmer, J. M., Los Angeles, Cal.
Woodbury, A. H., Cabot St., Beverly, Mass.
Worcester, C. P., Newtonville, Mass.
Wyman, A. A., West Acton, Mass.

Allen, W. H., Jr., Care Wm. H. Allen, Greenfield, Mass.
Altemus, H. E., 509-513 Cherry St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Bemis, F. G., Walker St., Cambridge, Mass.
Birtwell, C. W., 285 Broadway, Lawrence, Mass.
Breck, C. R., Berkeley, Alameda Co., Cal.
Buchman, Julius, Care J. Thompson & Co., 129 West Broadway, New York, N. Y.
Burdett, F. W., Harvard Ave., Brookline, Mass.

Chalfant, William, Jr., West Chester, Chester Co., Penn.
Chapin, W. F., Care Dr. Horace Chapin, Somerville, Mass.
Cole, G. E., Sheboygan, Wis.
Coolidge, Palmer, 1113 Massachusetts Ave., Washington, D.C.
Crawford, Henry, Jr., 2000 Calumet Ave., Chicago, Ill.
Crawford, W. H., 1544 Broadway, New York, N. Y.
Davis, C. E., Cambridge, Mass.
Davis, E. S., Care E. P. Davis, 63 Jefferson St., Brooklyn, N.Y.
Dole, W. A., Melrose, Mass.
Dunton, C. H., Allston, Mass.
Elder, F. E., Care of Rev. E. S. Elder, Keokuk, Iowa.
Fearing, D. B., Care Wm. Turnbull & Co., 57 and 59 Worth St., New York, N. Y.
Fearing, E. T., Care H. L. Fearing & Co., 91 & 93 Commercial St., Boston, Mass.
Ferguson, E. A., Bank Chambers, Detroit, Mich.
Frost, Howard, Care Fuller & Delano, 452 Main St., Worcester, Mass.
Fuller, R. B., Care Howe, Balch & Tay, 77 Water St., New York, N. Y.
Furness, W. R., 222 West Washington Square, Philadelphia, Pa.
Higgins, T. B., 1212 Massachusetts Ave., Washington, D. C.
Hoyt, H. R., Care A. M. Hoyt, 15 State St., New York, N. Y.
Jones, H. W., 276 Harvard St., Cambridgeport, Mass.
Kane, Woodbury, Care H. S. Ely, 22 Pine St., New York, N. Y.
Kip. C. H., Puritan Club, Boston, Mass.
Kirby, S. S., Towanda, Penn.
Langdon, Courtney, Episcopal Academy, Cheavie, Conn.
Lawrence, Prescott, Groton, Mass.
Leatherbee, G. H., 122 East Dedham St., Boston, Mass.
Lothrop, C. E., 17 Newberry & McMillan Block, Detroit, Mich.
Lyman, W. P., 74 Mt. Vernon St., Boston, Mass.
McArthur, A. F., 275 Ashland Ave., Chicago, Ill.
Mahan, J. F., Brookline, Mass.
Morton, F. W., 805 McLean St., Bloomington, Ill.
Nirdlinger, C. F., Fort Wayne, Indiana.
Norman, H. K., Gloucester, Mass.
Peirce, W. T., Care Chas. H. Peirce, Institution for Savings, New Bedford, Mass.
Perkins, G. W., Box 220, Topsfield, Essex Co., Mass.

Perkins, H. W., 107 Pearl St., Cambridgeport, Mass.
Potter, J. W., 198 Livingston St., Brooklyn, N.Y.
Prince, F. H., 2 State St., Boston, Mass.
Rand, C. E., Care Rand, McNally & Co., Chicago, Ill.
Rice, W. de G. C., 31-33 Major Block, Chicago, Ill.
Rogers, W. A., Box 613, Decatur, Ill.
Saunders, C. R., 50 North Ave., Cambridge, Mass.
Scott, E. D., 1222 North 2nd St., Richmond, Va.
Sharp, J. R., Care Bishop Sharp, Salt Lake City, Utah.
Slocum, F. R., Irving Court, New Bedford, Mass.
Sturgis, C. I., C. B. & Q. R. R. Co., Chicago, Ill.
Tisdale, W. M., Lowville Academy, Lowville, N.Y.
Treadwell, Dr. G. H., Colored Hospital, First Ave. and 65th St., New York, N. Y.
Tuckerman, Gustavus, Care R. T. Babson, Gloucester, Mass.
Weeks, A. G., Jr., Weeks & Potter, Boston, Mass.
Wellington, B. W., Corning, N. Y.
Welton, H. H., Wolfville, Nova Scotia.
Weston, H. E., 129 Essex Street, Salem, Mass.
Weston, W. H., 129 Essex Street, Salem, Mass.
White, W. L. W., 310 Harvard St., Cambridgeport, Mass.

CLASS FUND.

DR. FREDERICK NICHOLS, SECRETARY, in account with the Class of 1883. CR.

APRIL 1, 1883,—JUNE 1, 1884.

TO CASH FROM		BY CASH PAID
First instalments Class Fund	$1,154.00	For Class Dinner, June 25, 1883	$453.00
Anticipated instalments "	505.00	Printing Report No. 1, and Class Day Book	309.00
Balance from Class Day Committee	494.79	Album for use of Class	87.25
Sale of Song Books	12.60	Class Election expenses	60.00
		Blanks for "Class Lives"	18.00
		Class Printing, stamps, stationery, etc	85.64
		Printing for Photograph Committee	13.50
		Legal fee for protested bill of exchange	1.29

JUNE 1, 1884,—JUNE 1, 1885.

Second instalments Class Fund	$715.00	For Commencement Day Expenses, 1884, viz:
Third " " "	228.00	To J. H. Hubbard, Cambridge	$40.71
First " " "	114.00	Smith Bros., Caterers	28.20
Anticipated " " "	15.00	Janitor's services	8.00
Interest on deposits	30.62	Stamped envelopes	4.50
Sale of Class Day Books	9.34	Advertising	1.75
Legal fee repaid	1.29	Miscellaneous	25

JUNE 1, 1885,—JUNE 1, 1886.

Third instalments	$432.00	For Commencement Day expenses, 1885	$82.85
Second "	143.00	Class Cradle	22.50
Fourth "	90.00	2 $1,000 Burlington & Missouri R. R. in Nebraska 4 per cent bonds at 97½	1,950.00
First "	18.00	Interest and commission on same	37.44
Anticipated instalments	20.00	Printing	4.00
Interest on deposits	45.00	Advertising	1.55
		Miscellaneous	25
			$3,209.68
		Balance to new account	818.64
	$4,028.32		$4,028.32

COLLEGE FUND.

DR. FREDERICK NICHOLS, SECRETARY, in account with the Class of 1883. CR.

To CASH FROM		By CASH PAID
First instalments College Fund	$266.00	To A. B. Silsbee, Trustee	$977.50
Other " " "	711.50	Balance to new account	0.00
	$977.50		$977.50

SIGILLVM ✣ ACADEMIÆ HARVARDIANÆ
IN NOVA ANGLIA
CHRISTO ET ECCLESIÆ
VE RI
TAS